Big 3 Initial Test Ban Pact

Railroads Delay New Work Rules

Congress Given Time To Act On Kennedy's Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Yielding to congressional pressure, the railroad industry agreed Thursday to a month's delay in its timetable for the posting of new work rules which threatened to touch off a nationwide strike after midnight Monday.

House and Senate leaders said the 30-day postponement, to 12:01 a.m. on Aug. 29, would give Congress sufficient time to act on President Kennedy's plan to avert a walkout by turning the dispute over to the Interstate Commerce Commission for two years.

Seventh Postponement

It was the seventh time since 1960 that a deadline for imposition of the manpower-reducing work rules had been set and then postponed. Earlier delays came at the request of the Kennedy administration, or as a result of court action.

Heads of the House and Senate Commerce committees had urged the latest postponement, saying Congress did not have time to act on the Kennedy proposal before next Monday midnight, the old deadline.

Five unions representing on-train employes had served notice they would strike the minute the changes became effective.

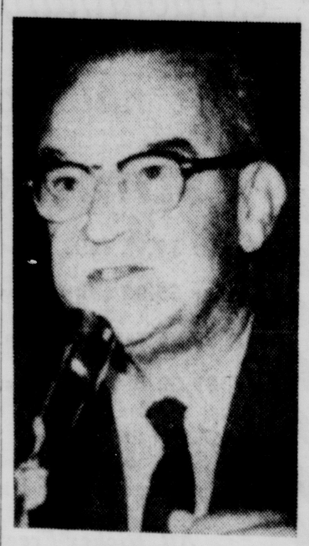
Daniel P. Loomis, president of the Association of American Railroads, announced the postponement as the House Commerce Committee opened its second day of hearings on the administration plan.

Sen. Pastore Pleased

"In response to the request of the chairmen of the House and Senate committees and in order to cooperate with the Congress of the United States the American railroads have agreed to a 30-day extension to 12:01 a.m., Aug. 29, 1963," he said.

On the other side of the Capitol, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said he was very pleased, and promised the Senate Commerce Committee will continue work at an accelerated pace to get the administration proposal to the floor. Pastore is acting chairman of the committee.

One hundred ninety-five railroads are involved in the four-year-old work rules controversy, which hinges on some 60,000 jobs, including those of 32,000 firemen and a variety of other jobs the industry contends are unnecessary.



ICC TESTIMONY — Laurence K. Walrath, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, tells the Senate Commerce Committee yesterday that the commission does not seek the powers to set railroad work rules which the administration's plan would delegate to it. However, he added that the members were prepared to accept the responsibility. (AP Photofax)

Beckwith Taken To Institution

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Smiling and cracking wise for newsmen, Byron De La Beckwith, accused slayer of civil rights leader Medgar Evers, entered the state mental hospital Thursday.

The 42-year-old fertilizer salesman from Greenwood, Miss., was moved from the county jail to the hospital at nearby Whitfield for a court-ordered mental test.

Handcuffed to Hinds County Sheriff Bob Gilfoy for the move, the smiling Beckwith was a picture of jovialty before newsmen and officials.

"Is there any particular pose I'm supposed to strike—stand at ease or something?" Beckwith asked as he readily posed for photographers.

The mental test will determine whether Beckwith is competent to stand trial for the Evers slaying.

Evers, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was shot in the back as he arrived home from a mass rally June 12.

Vice Charges Branded Lies By Dr. Ward

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Stephen T. Ward told a criminal court jury Thursday all the vice charges against him, reaching into London's high society, are lies.

The 50-year-old osteopath and artist, while conceding that he is "a thoroughly immoral man," kissed off as untruths and exaggerations, the testimony of Christine Keeler, Mandy Rice-Davies and other girls that they sold their bodies in his various apartments.

Ward took the stand in Old Bailey in his own defense after the prosecution rested in this fourth day of the dramatic trial. He was fighting a five-count indictment alleging he lived off prostitution and procuring, charges that could mean up to 25 years in prison.

He agreed he knew everyone named in the case, which has compelled British War Minister John Profumo to resign, dragged in Lord Astor and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and always implied many more were involved.

Ward admitted Miss Keeler, 21, lived with him.

"She was cheerful company. . . platonic," he said.

But he said her stories that he induced her to procure girls for him were untrue.

Ward openly questioned Christine's testimony that she shared her favors with Soviet naval attache Yevgeny Ivanov while she was going with Profumo.

It was this situation that originally jolted Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government, led to Profumo's resignation, and prompted a security inquiry that still is in progress.

JFK To Open Ratification Drive Tonight

Gratified Kennedy To Give Radio-TV Report To Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Kennedy administration campaign to win approval of a nuclear test ban treaty with the Soviets swung into high gear Thursday after initialing of the proposed pact at Moscow.

The White House announced that President Kennedy will report to the nation on radio and television Friday at 7 p.m. EDT on the two weeks of negotiations at the Soviet capital just concluded by Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

Kennedy was described as "gratified by the result" of the Moscow sessions.

Administration supporters hailed the agreement to outlaw nuclear testing in the air, in outer space and under water as an historic event in East-West relations. They held out hope for further moves ahead toward easing the cold war.

Ratification Expected

They figured on considerable debate in the Senate, which must ratify the treaty by a two-thirds majority, for it to become effective. But they predicted enough senators would vote for it.

In a rapid-fire sequence of announcements accompanying news from Moscow that the Soviet, British and U.S. negotiators had initialed the long-awaitedtreaty, the White House and State Department said:

Secretary of State Dean Rusk plans to go to Moscow soon for the formal treaty signing and some senators may go with him. The date of Rusk's departure and names of senators are not yet decided.

Harriman will return this weekend and report to Kennedy Sunday at the President's Hyannis Port, Mass., summer home, accompanied by Rusk. After briefing senators on the proposed pact, Harriman will probably return to Moscow with Rusk.

De Gaulle Kept Posted

Kennedy has been in touch with French President Charles de Gaulle to tell him of the Moscow outcome. France has been building her own independent nuclear force and has spurned the test ban proposal.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has raised a number of issues related to European security and easing East-West tensions. He publicly proposed that, simultaneously with a test ban pact, a nonaggression pact be concluded between the NATO and Warsaw military groups.

Rusk is prepared to discuss this further during his Moscow visit. But on the public record, the United States and Britain are not committed to any link of the controversial nonaggression pact with a test ban beyond their promise in Thursday's Moscow communique to discuss the matter with the NATO allies.

House Group Favors Indonesia Aid Cutoff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an unusual crackdown, irate members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday voted a conditional cut off of all U.S. aid to Indonesia because of the activities of the Sukarno regime.

The tough amendment to the foreign aid authorization bill would provide that President Kennedy could extend aid to the Asian nation but only if he formally rules that such help is vital to U.S. interests.

The amendment can be contested later in the House or the Senate.

Three Die, One Survives Atlantic Boat Capsizing

RYE, N.H. (AP)—A Schenectady, N.Y., man, sole survivor in an outboard capsizing that cost three lives, was plucked from the Atlantic after a harrowing night clinging to the boat with one hand and to a dying man with the other.

The victims included a father and son, Albert Eglintine Sr., 71, of Scotia, N.Y., and Walter Eglintine, 38, of Pittsfield, Mass.; and Mabel Lester, 62, of Schenectady, a friend of the elder Eglintine, a widower.

The lone survivor, Harold W. Jones, 40, was reported in good condition at Portsmouth Hospital. He was suffering from exposure and immersion, Doctors would not allow newsmen to talk with him.

Jones was found about an hour after daybreak Thursday 1½ miles outside Rye Harbor.

The four left Rye Harbor on Wednesday morning on a fishing trip to the Isles of Shoals 10 miles off the coast. They used an 18-foot runabout named the Carol Lou, powered with a 75-horsepower motor. The boat is owned by Albert Eglintine Jr. of Schenectady.

The fishing party was to have returned at 6 p.m. When it became overdue, Albert Eglintine Jr. notified the Coast Guard. A utility boat from the Hampton Beach lifeboat station searched all night and was returning to its station when it found Jones.

He was clinging to the capsized Carol Lou and holding to the older Eglintine who had "died in my arms about 5 o'clock." Rescuers said they had to pry his hands loose from the older man. Jones said he tried to hold on to Mrs. Lester, too, but she slipped away. Her body had drifted a half mile to sea.

100 Flee, Four Die In Caracas Prison Gunfight

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Leftist guerrillas and common convicts shot their way out of a Caracas prison Thursday in a chain of violence that spread terror through the Venezuelan capital.

Unofficial reports said that at least 4 persons were killed and more than 40 wounded. One hundred prisoners were reported to have fled, of whom 16 were recaptured.

Rioting at the midday meal, hundreds of the prison's 900 inmates ran through the penitentiary, opening cells of comrades and overpowering guards, officials reported.

One guard was shot. The mob stripped 40 guards of their uniforms, locked them up naked in the cells, and then poured through a hole in a wall under construction.

"This hole was made for them," one guard commented bitterly, suggesting the fugitives had outside assistance from the pro-Communist Armed Forces of National Liberation—FALN.

After the initial break, the guards rallied and called for reinforcements.

The FALN has waged a terrorist campaign for many months in an effort to topple the government of President Romulo Betancourt and set up a Castroite regime.

Overcrowded conditions at the prison — Reten la Planta in a residential district of the city — were said to have contributed to prisoner unrest.

The prison held hundreds of pro-Communist guerrillas captured in skirmishes dating back more than a year in the western Venezuelan mountains.

Meteorite, Not Saucer, Caused Mystery Crater

CHARLTON, England (AP) — The British army regretfully killed off a popular space fancy Thursday. That hole in farmer Roy Blanchard's potato field was blasted by a meteorite.

The eight-foot crater was found 10 days ago and prompted an eager flood of speculation that a flying saucer had crash landed in the drowsy English countryside.

"With a tinge of regret we announce that the mysterious hole in the ground at Charlton has yielded nothing more dramatic than a half-pound lump of matter which appears to be a meteorite. It is being sent to the British Museum for investigation.

"With the removal of this object at about noon today the hole ceased to give indications of the presence of anything metallic. The bomb disposal squad remains satisfied that nothing dangerous remains and is now tidying up farmer Blanchard's potato field."

Guard In Cambridge Eases Restrictions

Ban On Demonstrations Is Unchanged

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Militia law restrictions imposed in Cambridge July 12, after a night of racial rioting, were eased considerably Thursday.

Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, commander of the bayonet-carrying National Guard troops which have been stationed in the city of 12,000 since the same date, announced the relaxation of regulations after a 1½-hour meeting with a committee of white officials and legislators.

In other developments Thursday:

1. M. Baker Robbins, president of the county commissioners speaking only for himself, told the county school board he would be "hard to deal with" on budget money because the board voted to integrate schools immediately.

2. Negro leaders said they have accelerated a voter registration drive which had lagged during tense weeks of demonstrations and violence.

3. Some 400 of the 900 troops in town were withdrawn, and plans were announced for a weekend rotation to replace those remaining with fresh men.

A ban against demonstrations like those which led to violence was unchanged in the new reglations, made effective at 5 p.m. Thursday. Also unchanged were rules that vehicles are subject to stop and search, especially after 9 p.m., and that persons with firearms in their vehicles would have them confiscated and be subject to arrest and charges.

The curfew which has required everyone to be off the streets by 9 p.m. was changed to midnight.

Bars, taverns and clubs closed by a ban on all sale of alcoholic beverages will be permitted to remain open until 11 o'clock nightly with the ban now lifted.

Package goods stores, only recently permitted to sell one six-pack of beer to each customer, may conduct unlimited business until 8 p.m. Stores and other businesses may remain open until 11 p.m., instead of 7 p.m.

Requests for mass meetings and rallies must be submitted to the National guard commander, giving time and place.

Gen. Gelston said the restrictions were eased in view of the agreement between white officials and Negro integration leaders announced Tuesday in Washington, which brought a truce in the racial conflict.

"The Maryland National Guard, in Cambridge at the request of the mayor and City Council, will remain for an indefinite period to insure peace and order and until relieved by order of the governor," Gelston said.

"While the National Guard is in Cambridge, the provisions of the militia law are in effect and restrictions may be established if deemed necessary by the National Guard commander."

The agreement was announced in the office of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, where both sides had met for 1½ days. Negroes agreed to halt further demonstrations, indefinitely in return for a town charter amendment on public accommodations, complete school integration, a low-rent public housing project and appointment of a Negro interviewer to an employment office.

Live Rocket Dropped By Navy Plane

SALISBURY (AP) — State Police reported Thursday night that a live rocket had been accidentally dumped from a Navy plane in the Fairmont - Kingston area of Somerset County on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Police said they were conducting a hurried and extensive search for the missile, which they described as about five feet long, gray in color and highly explosive.

A spokesman at Patuxent Naval Air Station, located just across the Chesapeake Bay from Somerset County, confirmed that a rocket had been accidentally jettisoned, but said the plane from which it came was based on a carrier off shore. The spokesman said the rocket was an air-to-ground type missile and "I certainly wouldn't want to pick it up."

The Defense Department said in Washington the missile was dropped from a Navy Skyraider propeller driven plane.

It had taken off from the carrier Forrestal off the Atlantic Coast and was en route to target practice when the plane had a malfunction and the missile dropped.

The Defense Department said the missile apparently dropped in a wooded and swampy area.

The mishap occurred about 5 p.m., the department said, and two helicopters were sent up to see if they could locate it. They were unsuccessful. Ordnance teams will be sent out Friday morning to seek the missile, which was described as dangerous.

Syncom Launching Postponed Again

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) Steering system troubles forced another postponement Thursday in the launching of Syncom II, a communications satellite designed for worldwide telephone, telegraph and facsimile transmissions.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) rescheduled the launching for 9:30 a.m. EST (10:30 a.m. EDT) Friday.

24 Clergymen Picket Hospital Site, Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-four clergymen knelt in prayer outside a Brooklyn hospital site Thursday, then marched onto a picket line and into the arms of police.

The clergymen were among more than 80 persons arrested in the latest demonstration for more jobs for Negroes in the building industry.

The ministers, nearly all of them Negroes and wearing clerical garb, sought to block trucks from entering the site of the new state-financed Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn. They submitted to arrest without protest.

However, other pickets sat down and some were carried kicking to police vans. One group of 14 chained themselves together. Police used heavy shears to cut them apart so they could be loaded into vans.

Nearly 550 pickets have been arrested at the hospital site since Monday's mass demonstration by 1,000 whites and Negroes. There were about 130 pickets on hand Wednesday.

Racial demonstrators in Brooklyn and other parts of the city are demanding that all publicly financed construction be halted, unless contractors agree to a quota of 25 per cent Negro employes on building jobs.

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, to whom the demonstrators have appealed, characterized the quota system as "an unsound approach."

He told a news conference Thursday:

"The idea of 25 per cent Negroes, 25 per cent Puerto Ricans, 25 per cent Italian ancestry, 25 per cent Irish ancestry—the thing gets absurd. The answer is equality of opportunity for everyone."

Ward Trial Reporting Assailed By Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano Thursday assailed press reporting of the London trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, and called it one of the most disgusting stories in recent years.

The Vatican newspaper said: "In these days the press, with rare and praise worthy exceptions, is dedicating columns and pages . . . to a trial taking place in London, reporting it in all of its most base details."

Daring Low-Cut Bosom Line Unveiled By Dior

PARIS (AP) — Daring accentuation of milady's bosom by Dior was a spicy surprise Thursday at Paris' high couture showings.

The new bosom line—high and bulging — was designed by Dior's Marc Bohan for cocktail and evening wear. For daytime, Bohan was more conventional with necklines.

Hemlines were left unchanged at knee level for day wear.

Bohan's new look for bosoms dropped the necklines to daring levels. Bosoms bulged seductively.

The waist for cocktail and evening wear was marked just below the rounded, strapped bosoms which in many creations almost emerged from bodices.

The high waist produced an elongated torso in the shift and chemise creations for evening wear.

For daytime, Dior told a restrained stunning story in tweeds and oversize checked plaids. Classic suits were revived. Marvelous roomy topcoats dress-length, nine-tenths, or three-quarter length had heavy shoulders. Patch pockets were placed diagonally, vertical trouser pockets were flapped vertically.

Hand-picked colors were featured. Old rose and gray tweed topped a gray flannel dress, and brown and orange tweed had a brown or orange dress. Necklines for daytime built up like a Russian peasant shirt with a center fastening instead of side buttoning.

Negotiators Call Treaty Peace Step

Foreign Ministers To Sign Agreement In Moscow Soon

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union agreed in a treaty initialed Thursday to end nuclear testing in the atmosphere, outer space and under water. They immediately hailed their unprecedented accord as a major breakthrough toward easing cold war tensions.

In the agreement, climaxing arduous negotiations almost as old as the atomic age itself, the three powers also affirmed their determination to continue striving for a complete ban on nuclear testing and implied they will give no nuclear aid to nations that do not go along.

The Big Three foreign ministers —America's Dean Rusk, Britain's Lord Home and Russia's Andrei Gromyko — will sign the treaty in Moscow in the near future, a communique said.

Britain's chief negotiator said he expects the signing to take place within two or three weeks.

Simple Ceremony

Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who led the U.S. team through the 10 Moscow sessions leading to agreement, initialed the draft in a simple ceremony with Gromyko and Britain's chief negotiator, Science Minister Lord Hailsham.

It was evident from the negotiators' comments, the treaty itself and the communique that the partial test ban, if effected, is envisioned as merely the opening round of a series of East-West negotiations on a number of outstanding issues.

A three-power summit meeting is considered by some Western quarters as a strong possibility to get the ball rolling again on such issues as an East-West nonaggression pact, a complete test ban and disarmament.

With notable exceptions, leaders of East and West hailed the Moscow announcement as a step on the road to peace.

But in Paris, President Charles de Gaulle's government reaffirmed that it would not be bound by the agreement in its efforts to make France an independent nuclear power.

China Denounces Pact

Communist China, striving to enter the nuclear club, had denounced the treaty in advance.

In Washington, President Kennedy moved quickly to marshal American opinion behind the treaty to give impetus to the administration's drive to win the two-thirds support in the Senate necessary for ratification.

The White House announced the President will speak to the nation Friday night on the agreement. The State Department said Secretary of State Rusk is expected to take a congressional delegation with him to Moscow for the signing.

The treaty itself is a document of about 800 words, as easy to read as a high school text book.

It provides that each of the parties "undertakes to prohibit, to prevent and not to carry out any nuclear weapon test or any other nuclear explosion at any place under its jurisdiction or control."

Then it specifies that this ban

Liner Salvage Attempt Set

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A deep sea diver who plans to salvage the Italian liner Andrea Doria, which sank seven years ago, said Thursday he has exclusive rights to the wreckage.

Jim Taylor, 29, of Hyattsville, Md., said, "I spent 3½ years dealing with Italian underwriters in Genoa. If anyone touches that ship I can sue them for every dime they have."

Taylor said he paid $100,000 about 30 days ago for the salvage rights and disclosed that he was financed by Robert F. Sollomon and Glen Garvin, both of Silver Spring, Md. He said he has a 20-man crew and a 136-foot ship ready to start work soon. The party planned to leave Miami, where they had been rehearsing scuba diving, today but delayed departure 24 hours.

The liner collided with the Swedish ship Stockholm on July 25, 1956 and sank 242 feet the next day. The 39,500-ton ship went down about 25 miles northeast of Nantucket. Fifty-two persons died.

Taylor said he would need two weeks of diving time to complete the salvage. He said he hoped to surface the liner by the end of next month by pumping two million cubic feet of air into the vessel, which he estimates is worth $6 million.

The four left Rye Harbor on Wednesday morning on a fishing trip to the Isles of Shoals 10 miles off the coast. They used an 18-foot runabout named the Carol Lou, powered with a 75-horsepower motor. The boat is owned by Albert Eglintine Jr. of Schenectady.

The fishing party was to have returned at 6 p.m. When it became overdue, Albert Eglintine Jr. notified the Coast Guard. A utility boat from the Hampton Beach lifeboat station searched all night and was returning to its station when it found Jones.

He was clinging to the capsized Carol Lou and holding to the older Eglintine who had "died in my arms about 5 o'clock." Rescuers said they had to pry his hands loose from the older man. Jones said he tried to hold on to Mrs. Lester, too, but she slipped away. Her body had drifted a half mile to sea.

100 Flee, Four Die In Caracas Prison Gunfight

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Leftist guerrillas and common convicts shot their way out of a Caracas prison Thursday in a chain of violence that spread terror through the Venezuelan capital.

Unofficial reports said that at least 4 persons were killed and more than 40 wounded. One hundred prisoners were reported to have fled, of whom 16 were recaptured.

Rioting at the midday meal, hundreds of the prison's 900 inmates ran through the penitentiary, opening cells of comrades and overpowering guards, officials reported.

One guard was shot. The mob stripped 40 guards of their uniforms, locked them up naked in the cells, and then poured through a hole in a wall under construction.

"This hole was made for them," one guard commented bitterly, suggesting the fugitives had outside assistance from the pro-Communist Armed Forces of National Liberation—FALN.

After the initial break, the guards rallied and called for reinforcements.

The FALN has waged a terrorist campaign for many months in an effort to topple the government of President Romulo Betancourt and set up a Castroite regime.

Overcrowded conditions at the prison — Reten la Planta in a residential district of the city — were said to have contributed to prisoner unrest.

The prison held hundreds of pro-Communist guerrillas captured in skirmishes dating back more than a year in the western Venezuelan mountains.

Meteorite, Not Saucer, Caused Mystery Crater

CHARLTON, England (AP) — The British army regretfully killed off a popular space fancy Thursday. That hole in farmer Roy Blanchard's potato field was blasted by a meteorite.

The eight-foot crater was found 10 days ago and prompted an eager flood of speculation that a flying saucer had crash landed in the drowsy English countryside.

"With a tinge of regret we announce that the mysterious hole in the ground at Charlton has yielded nothing more dramatic than a half-pound lump of matter which appears to be a meteorite. It is being sent to the British Museum for investigation.

"With the removal of this object at about noon today the hole ceased to give indications of the presence of anything metallic. The bomb disposal squad remains satisfied that nothing dangerous remains and is now tidying up farmer Blanchard's potato field."

Guard In Cambridge Eases Restrictions

Ban On Demonstrations Is Unchanged

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Militia law restrictions imposed in Cambridge July 12, after a night of racial rioting, were eased considerably Thursday.

Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, commander of the bayonet-carrying National Guard troops which have been stationed in the city of 12,000 since the same date, announced the relaxation of regulations after a 1½-hour meeting with a committee of white officials and legislators.

In other developments Thursday:

1. M. Baker Robbins, president of the county commissioners speaking only for himself, told the county school board he would be "hard to deal with" on budget money because the board voted to integrate schools immediately.

2. Negro leaders said they have accelerated a voter registration drive which had lagged during tense weeks of demonstrations and violence.

3. Some 400 of the 900 troops in town were withdrawn, and plans were announced for a weekend rotation to replace those remaining with fresh men.

A ban against demonstrations like those which led to violence was unchanged in the new reglations, made effective at 5 p.m. Thursday. Also unchanged were rules that vehicles are subject to stop and search, especially after 9 p.m., and that persons with firearms in their vehicles would have them confiscated and be subject to arrest and charges.

The curfew which has required everyone to be off the streets by 9 p.m. was changed to midnight.

Bars, taverns and clubs closed by a ban on all sale of alcoholic beverages will be permitted to remain open until 11 o'clock nightly with the ban now lifted.

Package goods stores, only recently permitted to sell one six-pack of beer to each customer, may conduct unlimited business until 8 p.m. Stores and other businesses may remain open until 11 p.m., instead of 7 p.m.

Requests for mass meetings and rallies must be submitted to the National guard commander, giving time and place.

Gen. Gelston said the restrictions were eased in view of the agreement between white officials and Negro integration leaders announced Tuesday in Washington, which brought a truce in the racial conflict.

"The Maryland National Guard, in Cambridge at the request of the mayor and City Council, will remain for an indefinite period to insure peace and order and until relieved by order of the governor," Gelston said.

"While the National Guard is in Cambridge, the provisions of the militia law are in effect and restrictions may be established if deemed necessary by the National Guard commander."

The agreement was announced in the office of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, where both sides had met for 1½ days. Negroes agreed to halt further demonstrations, indefinitely in return for a town charter amendment on public accommodations, complete school integration, a low-rent public housing project and appointment of a Negro interviewer to an employment office.

Live Rocket Dropped By Navy Plane

SALISBURY (AP) — State Police reported Thursday night that a live rocket had been accidentally dumped from a Navy plane in the Fairmont - Kingston area of Somerset County on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Police said they were conducting a hurried and extensive search for the missile, which they described as about five feet long, gray in color and highly explosive.

A spokesman at Patuxent Naval Air Station, located just across the Chesapeake Bay from Somerset County, confirmed that a rocket had been accidentally jettisoned, but said the plane from which it came was based on a carrier off shore. The spokesman said the rocket was an air-to-ground type missile and "I certainly wouldn't want to pick it up."

The Defense Department said in Washington the missile was dropped from a Navy Skyraider propeller driven plane.

It had taken off from the carrier Forrestal off the Atlantic Coast and was en route to target practice when the plane had a malfunction and the missile dropped.

The Defense Department said the missile apparently dropped in a wooded and swampy area.

The mishap occurred about 5 p.m., the department said, and two helicopters were sent up to see if they could locate it. They were unsuccessful. Ordnance teams will be sent out Friday morning to seek the missile, which was described as dangerous.

Syncom Launching Postponed Again

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) Steering system troubles forced another postponement Thursday in the launching of Syncom II, a communications satellite designed for worldwide telephone, telegraph and facsimile transmissions.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) rescheduled the launching for 9:30 a.m. EST (10:30 a.m. EDT) Friday.

24 Clergymen Picket Hospital Site, Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-four clergymen knelt in prayer outside a Brooklyn hospital site Thursday, then marched onto a picket line and into the arms of police.

The clergymen were among more than 80 persons arrested in the latest demonstration for more jobs for Negroes in the building industry.

The ministers, nearly all of them Negroes and wearing clerical garb, sought to block trucks from entering the site of the new state-financed Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn. They submitted to arrest without protest.

However, other pickets sat down and some were carried kicking to police vans. One group of 14 chained themselves together. Police used heavy shears to cut them apart so they could be loaded into vans.

Nearly 550 pickets have been arrested at the hospital site since Monday's mass demonstration by 1,000 whites and Negroes. There were about 130 pickets on hand Wednesday.

Racial demonstrators in Brooklyn and other parts of the city are demanding that all publicly financed construction be halted, unless contractors agree to a quota of 25 per cent Negro employes on building jobs.

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, to whom the demonstrators have appealed, characterized the quota system as "an unsound approach."

He told a news conference Thursday:

"The idea of 25 per cent Negroes, 25 per cent Puerto Ricans, 25 per cent Italian ancestry, 25 per cent Irish ancestry—the thing gets absurd. The answer is equality of opportunity for everyone."

Ward Trial Reporting Assailed By Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano Thursday assailed press reporting of the London trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, and called it one of the most disgusting stories in recent years.

The Vatican newspaper said: "In these days the press, with rare and praise worthy exceptions, is dedicating columns and pages . . . to a trial taking place in London, reporting it in all of its most base details."

Daring Low-Cut Bosom Line Unveiled By Dior

PARIS (AP) — Daring accentuation of milady's bosom by Dior was a spicy surprise Thursday at Paris' high couture showings.

The new bosom line—high and bulging — was designed by Dior's Marc Bohan for cocktail and evening wear. For daytime, Bohan was more conventional with necklines.

Hemlines were left unchanged at knee level for day wear.

Bohan's new look for bosoms dropped the necklines to daring levels. Bosoms bulged seductively.

The waist for cocktail and evening wear was marked just below the rounded, strapped bosoms which in many creations almost emerged from bodices.

The high waist produced an elongated torso in the shift and chemise creations for evening wear.

For daytime, Dior told a restrained stunning story in tweeds and oversize checked plaids. Classic suits were revived. Marvelous roomy topcoats dress-length, nine-tenths, or three-quarter length had heavy shoulders. Patch pockets were placed diagonally, vertical trouser pockets were flapped vertically.

Hand-picked colors were featured. Old rose and gray tweed topped a gray flannel dress, and brown and orange tweed had a brown or orange dress. Necklines for daytime built up like a Russian peasant shirt with a center fastening instead of side buttoning.

Negotiators Call Treaty Peace Step

Foreign Ministers To Sign Agreement In Moscow Soon

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union agreed in a treaty initialed Thursday to end nuclear testing in the atmosphere, outer space and under water. They immediately hailed their unprecedented accord as a major breakthrough toward easing cold war tensions.

In the agreement, climaxing arduous negotiations almost as old as the atomic age itself, the three powers also affirmed their determination to continue striving for a complete ban on nuclear testing and implied they will give no nuclear aid to nations that do not go along.

The Big Three foreign ministers —America's Dean Rusk, Britain's Lord Home and Russia's Andrei Gromyko — will sign the treaty in Moscow in the near future, a communique said.

Britain's chief negotiator said he expects the signing to take place within two or three weeks.

Simple Ceremony

Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, who led the U.S. team through the 10 Moscow sessions leading to agreement, initialed the draft in a simple ceremony with Gromyko and Britain's chief negotiator, Science Minister Lord Hailsham.

It was evident from the negotiators' comments, the treaty itself and the communique that the partial test ban, if effected, is envisioned as merely the opening round of a series of East-West negotiations on a number of outstanding issues.

A three-power summit meeting is considered by some Western quarters as a strong possibility to get the ball rolling again on such issues as an East-West nonaggression pact, a complete test ban and disarmament.

With notable exceptions, leaders of East and West hailed the Moscow announcement as a step on the road to peace.

But in Paris, President Charles de Gaulle's government reaffirmed that it would not be bound by the agreement in its efforts to make France an independent nuclear power.

China Denounces Pact

Communist China, striving to enter the nuclear club, had denounced the treaty in advance.

In Washington, President Kennedy moved quickly to marshal American opinion behind the treaty to give impetus to the administration's drive to win the two-thirds support in the Senate necessary for ratification.

The White House announced the President will speak to the nation Friday night on the agreement. The State Department said Secretary of State Rusk is expected to take a congressional delegation with him to Moscow for the signing.

The treaty itself is a document of about 800 words, as easy to read as a high school text book.

It provides that each of the parties "undertakes to prohibit, to prevent and not to carry out any nuclear weapon test or any other nuclear explosion at any place under its jurisdiction or control."

Then it specifies that this ban

Liner Salvage Attempt Set

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A deep sea diver who plans to salvage the Italian liner Andrea Doria, which sank seven years ago, said Thursday he has exclusive rights to the wreckage.

Jim Taylor, 29, of Hyattsville, Md., said, "I spent 3½ years dealing with Italian underwriters in Genoa. If anyone touches that ship I can sue them for every dime they have."

Taylor said he paid $100,000 about 30 days ago for the salvage rights and disclosed that he was financed by Robert F. Sollomon and Glen Garvin, both of Silver Spring, Md. He said he has a 20-man crew and a 136-foot ship ready to start work soon. The party planned to leave Miami, where they had been rehearsing scuba diving, today but delayed departure 24 hours.

The liner collided with the Swedish ship Stockholm on July 25, 1956 and sank 242 feet the next day. The 39,500-ton ship went down about 25 miles northeast of Nantucket. Fifty-two persons died.

Taylor said he would need two weeks of diving time to complete the salvage. He said he hoped to surface the liner by the end of next month by pumping two million cubic feet of air into the vessel, which he estimates is worth $6 million.

Castro Charges U.S. Plans Aggressions

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuba charged Thursday that the United States is preparing "new economic aggressions and military actions against Cuba which endanger the peace of the world."

The Kennedy administration is sponsoring Cuban exile military preparations in Latin America and plans to halt dollars from trickling into Cuba from the payroll of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, the official news agency Prensa Latina reported.

The Havana dispatch was printed by all government newspapers and echoed on the official radio, which said "forewarned of this new and vile villainy, the government of Cuba is studying measures to adequately respond" to the alleged aggressions.

The Cuban government expropriated the U.S. Embassy building Wednesday and all of its contents. The Swiss Mission for American Affairs, which had been occupying the building, was ordered to move out but was still occupying the building Thursday.

The Swiss protested the government action.

The Cuban denunciations referred to the "suspicious movements of counter - revolutionary elements in Latin America which indicate that the American government is sponsoring new military operations" against Cuba.

Both the official press and radio said the Kennedy government is preparing to stamp all U.S. dollar bills paid to Cuban employes at Guantanamo "so that they would have value only on the base and in the United States."

Around 2,000 Cubans commute daily to the base from Guantanamo city and the tiny port of Caimanera. They are paid each Friday in dollars. The dollars are converted to Cuban pesos at a Cuban government bank branch outside the gate. The rate is one for one.

Ten Cuba pesos could be purchased for $1.00 on the Miami black market.

If each of the employes earned only the minimum wage of $30 per week on the base, this would represent a yearly dollar income of $3 million for dollar-short Cuba.

City Councilman Tripped By Picket

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle councilman was sent sprawling into a corridor at City Hall Thursday when he apparently was tripped by persons in a group protesting for integration.

Police were called to control the disturbance.

Councilman Charles M. Carroll fell when his ankles were grabbed by one or more young pickets in a biracial group blocking an exit door from the City Council chambers. It was not clear which pickets did the tripping.

The young people had sat in front of the chambers during a meeting to discuss Mayor Gordon Clinton's appointments to a human rights commission. The pickets wanted six Negroes named to the 12-man commission and a Negro as executive director. Clinton had named two Negro commissioners and appointed a Japanese-American civic leader as director.

Senate Committee Probes Plane Crash

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Commerce Committee has launched an informal inquiry into the July 7 airplane crash at Willow Grove, Pa., which killed seven persons, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Thursday.

The plane, from the Willow Grove Naval Air Station, crashed into a recreation area.

In a letter to Scott, Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said he had asked the Navy and the Federal Aviation Agency for reports including recommendations for changes in procedures, regulations or any legislation the navy and FAA feel is needed to prevent such accidents in the future.

covers "the atmosphere, beyond its limits, including outer space or under water, including territorial waters or high seas."

The treaty further provides a ban against tests "in any other environment if such explosion causes radioactive debris to be present outside the territorial limits of the state under whose jurisdiction or control such explosion is conducted."

While other countries are invited to sign the treaty, there is a provision for Russia, the United States and Britain to exercise a veto in event of any effort by other signers to amend the treaty in a way they do not like.

Moreover, in case one of the participants suspects there has been a violation, it can withdraw from the treaty on three months' notice and begin its own testing again if it feels its security is threatened.

The treaty goes into effect as soon as it is ratified, which means in the case of the United States, after Senate approval.

The agreement omits underground explosions. Russian and Western negotiators have never been able to reconcile their differences about on-site inspection to check on suspicious earth disturbances. The United States and Britain insist on such inspection; the Soviet Union rejects it as a potential cover for Western spying.

The Treaty, of unlimited duration, will be open to all nations for signature, that includes France, a NATO member which has been developing its own nuclear weapons system, and Red China, which is reported striving to perfect its first atomic device.

Both have cold-shouldered the Big Three project.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said Thursday France will not be bound by the ban on nuclear testing.

Racial Crisis Is Reflected In Youngsters

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—The racial crisis in this small Maryland Eastern Shore community that has twice boiled into violence, touches the children here as well as adults.

Tots sling canteens on their hips and carry rifles too realistic as they emulate National Guardsmen standing guard in the streets.

On a common playground, white and Negro boys playing baseball dash away as a photographer approaches.

Other children, taking their cue from adults, who blame outside news media for at least part of their problem, hurl chestnuts at a visiting newsman, then run away.

The midnight curfew imposed on adults and teenagers alike leaves the youngsters not knowing what to do in the midst of summer vacation. Attendance at movies, bowling and parties has slackened considerably. And the time - honored practice of teenagers just driving around on a hot summer night has practically disappeared.

The teenagers, beginning to think of the other generation and theirs too, write letters to the editors of the Cambridge Daily Banner.

One Negro youngster writes;

"The shootings . . . wouldn't have happened if the white people didn't ask for it. You as whites love bloodshed."

Another, race unknown, looks farther ahead. He urges prayers "because Heaven is a place we got to be there together as well as hell."

"If that doesn't give us adults something to ponder, nothing will," editorialized Maurice Rimpo, editor of the Banner.

Girl Drowns Near Bay Resort Town

BETTERTON, Md. (AP)—A 15-year - old Camden, Del., girl drowned Thursday when she slipped into a deep channel while trying to cross Lloy's Creek inlet near this bay resort town.

The victim, Catherine Collins, was hiking with her cousin, her sister and a friend, when they started to cross the inlet. Catherine slipped into the channel.

The other girls tried to form a hand-to-hand chain to save her, but the swift current swept her out into the deep part of the creek.

The victim's body was recovered later by a Tidewater Fisheries boat.

Pollinating insects are essential for seed development in carrots, radishes, turnips, cabbage, celery and many other vegetables.

Rescue Party Searches Peak For Md. Man

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP)—A four-member rescue party equipped with a high powered telescope searched Thursday for a Maryland man missing on the Going-to-the-Sun Mountain in Glacier National Park.

The chief ranger at the park, Lyle McDowell, said a helicopter was standing by if David Wilson, 21, of Severna Park, Md., is found. Wilson, employed by the park as a tree disease control worker, failed to return from a climb up the rugged face of the peak last Sunday.

"We're hampered by foul weather on the mountain," McDowell said. "The gusts up there have ranged from 20 to 40 miles an hour and there have been a lot of clouds right below the top."

He said the four-man crew would scale the east face of the mountain, using the telescope to search distant snow banks and cliffs.

A 19-man search team Wednesday found Wilson's name written in a register on top of the mountain. The climbers descended the peak without discovering any other trace of the missing man. During part of the search, they split up into five separate teams covering different parts of the mountain.

Wilson's brother, Steven, also a tree disease control employe, has participated in the search. Earlier, Wilson's father, Paul O. Wilson of Baltimore, said he would come to the park.

McDowell said the missing man is a seasonal employe, hired only for the summer.

No Evidence Rights Leaders Reds, FBI Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy notified Congress Thursday that an FBI check has shown no evidence that any of the leaders of the major civil rights movements are Communists or Communist-controlled.

Kennedy also wrote Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney, D-Okla., that Communist efforts to infiltrate integration groups have been "remarkably unsuccessful."

Monroney is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee which recently heard Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama charge that Communist influences were back of much of the Negro civil rights protest activity.

The senator wrote FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for his views and the latter turned the letter over to Kennedy.

The attorney general replied: "Based on all available information from the FBI and other sources, we have no evidence that any of the top leaders of the major civil rights groups are Communist-controlled. This is true as to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., about whom particular accusations were made, as well as other leaders."

Barnett in his appearance before the Senate committee offered a photograph showing King at a school which the governor said was Communist-dominated.

Buddhist Monks Prepare "Grenades"

SAIGON (UPI) — Defiant Buddhist monks barricaded themselves in their main pagoda here Thursday and girded for battle in their dispute with the South Viet Nam government over alleged religious discrimination.

As "weapons," the Buddhists prepared grenades of salt and pepper wrapped in paper, pans of chili sauce and cans filled with lemon juice, red peppers and curry powder.

CHAINED PROTEST — Upraised arms of 14 pickets are chained together as they sit at entrance to construction site of Downstate Medical Center in New York's borough of Brooklyn yesterday. A squad of policemen later moved in to remove the chains with wire cutters and arrest the demonstrators. U.S. Copter Pilots Take Offensive In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—American helicopter pilots in South Viet Nam have started taking a full combat role in the war against Communist guerrillas.

They have been given most of the credit for the big kill against guerrillas who tried to trap a ranger battalion north of here Monday.

Flights by these Americans in the Mekong River delta are accounting for a mounting number of guerrillas.

When these high fire-power helicopter units first arrived in Viet Nam from the United States late last year they were restricted to firing at guerrillas only when shot at.

Last March, the American command in Saigon told pilots they could fire first, but only when Communist groundfire endangered a transport helicopter assault mission. Missions flown by armed helicopters in recent weeks, however, go far beyond those limits.

On Monday five helicopters flew in to aid the trapped ranger battalion even though no transport helicopters were being used. They fired 25,000 machine gun rounds and 140 rockets.

Then the five ships flew back to Saigon, reloaded, and moved in on guerrilla positions again. The Viet Cong pulled out, leaving 112 bodies, Vietnamese military officers claim.

Kidnap Suspect Ends Her Life

CHICAGO (UPI) — A childless, recently widowed woman accused of kidnaping an 18-day-old girl because she "wanted something to love," shot and killed herself Thursday in a hotel room.

Police said Mrs. Mary Ann Dunlap, 39, who lost her husband and her father within days last month, fatally wounded herself in the abdomen with a shot from a .22 caliber revolver.

She died in surgery in Von Solbrig Hospital as doctors fought a losing battle to save her life.

Mrs. Dunlap faced charges of interstate transportation of a kidnap victim in the abduction of Lori Ann Burnham from the child's mother in Metropolis, Ill.

Agents recovered the Burnham child, unharmed, from Mrs. Dunlap and turned the baby over to its father and mother, Pfc. Larry Burnham and his wife, Rose.

Racial Crisis Is Reflected In Youngsters

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—The racial crisis in this small Maryland Eastern Shore community that has twice boiled into violence, touches the children here as well as adults.

Tots sling canteens on their hips and carry rifles too realistic as they emulate National Guardsmen standing guard in the streets.

On a common playground, white and Negro boys playing baseball dash away as a photographer approaches.

Other children, taking their cue from adults, who blame outside news media for at least part of their problem, hurl chestnuts at a visiting newsman, then run away.

The midnight curfew imposed on adults and teenagers alike leaves the youngsters not knowing what to do in the midst of summer vacation. Attendance at movies, bowling and parties has slackened considerably. And the time - honored practice of teenagers just driving around on a hot summer night has practically disappeared.

The teenagers, beginning to think of the other generation and theirs too, write letters to the editors of the Cambridge Daily Banner.

One Negro youngster writes;

"The shootings . . . wouldn't have happened if the white people didn't ask for it. You as whites love bloodshed."

Another, race unknown, looks farther ahead. He urges prayers "because Heaven is a place we got to be there together as well as hell."

"If that doesn't give us adults something to ponder, nothing will," editorialized Maurice Rimpo, editor of the Banner.

Girl Drowns Near Bay Resort Town

BETTERTON, Md. (AP)—A 15-year - old Camden, Del., girl drowned Thursday when she slipped into a deep channel while trying to cross Lloy's Creek inlet near this bay resort town.

The victim, Catherine Collins, was hiking with her cousin, her sister and a friend, when they started to cross the inlet. Catherine slipped into the channel.

The other girls tried to form a hand-to-hand chain to save her, but the swift current swept her out into the deep part of the creek.

The victim's body was recovered later by a Tidewater Fisheries boat.

Pollinating insects are essential for seed development in carrots, radishes, turnips, cabbage, celery and many other vegetables.

Rescue Party Searches Peak For Md. Man

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP)—A four-member rescue party equipped with a high powered telescope searched Thursday for a Maryland man missing on the Going-to-the-Sun Mountain in Glacier National Park.

The chief ranger at the park, Lyle McDowell, said a helicopter was standing by if David Wilson, 21, of Severna Park, Md., is found. Wilson, employed by the park as a tree disease control worker, failed to return from a climb up the rugged face of the peak last Sunday.

"We're hampered by foul weather on the mountain," McDowell said. "The gusts up there have ranged from 20 to 40 miles an hour and there have been a lot of clouds right below the top."

He said the four-man crew would scale the east face of the mountain, using the telescope to search distant snow banks and cliffs.

A 19-man search team Wednesday found Wilson's name written in a register on top of the mountain. The climbers descended the peak without discovering any other trace of the missing man. During part of the search, they split up into five separate teams covering different parts of the mountain.

Wilson's brother, Steven, also a tree disease control employe, has participated in the search. Earlier, Wilson's father, Paul O. Wilson of Baltimore, said he would come to the park.

McDowell said the missing man is a seasonal employe, hired only for the summer.

No Evidence Rights Leaders Reds, FBI Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy notified Congress Thursday that an FBI check has shown no evidence that any of the leaders of the major civil rights movements are Communists or Communist-controlled.

Kennedy also wrote Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney, D-Okla., that Communist efforts to infiltrate integration groups have been "remarkably unsuccessful."

Monroney is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee which recently heard Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama charge that Communist influences were back of much of the Negro civil rights protest activity.

The senator wrote FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for his views and the latter turned the letter over to Kennedy.

The attorney general replied: "Based on all available information from the FBI and other sources, we have no evidence that any of the top leaders of the major civil rights groups are Communist-controlled. This is true as to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., about whom particular accusations were made, as well as other leaders."

Barnett in his appearance before the Senate committee offered a photograph showing King at a school which the governor said was Communist-dominated.

Buddhist Monks Prepare "Grenades"

SAIGON (UPI) — Defiant Buddhist monks barricaded themselves in their main pagoda here Thursday and girded for battle in their dispute with the South Viet Nam government over alleged religious discrimination.

As "weapons," the Buddhists prepared grenades of salt and pepper wrapped in paper, pans of chili sauce and cans filled with lemon juice, red peppers and curry powder.

CHAINED PROTEST — Upraised arms of 14 pickets are chained together as they sit at entrance to construction site of Downstate Medical Center in New York's borough of Brooklyn yesterday. A squad of policemen later moved in to remove the chains with wire cutters and arrest the demonstrators. A member of the Congress of Racial Equality chained the pickets together as they sat in roadway to protest alleged job discrimination. (AP Photofax)

U.S. Copter Pilots Take Offensive In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—American helicopter pilots in South Viet Nam have started taking a full combat role in the war against Communist guerrillas.

They have been given most of the credit for the big kill against guerrillas who tried to trap a ranger battalion north of here Monday.

Flights by these Americans in the Mekong River delta are accounting for a mounting number of guerrillas.

When these high fire-power helicopter units first arrived in Viet Nam from the United States late last year they were restricted to firing at guerrillas only when shot at.

Last March, the American command in Saigon told pilots they could fire first, but only when Communist groundfire endangered a transport helicopter assault mission. Missions flown by armed helicopters in recent weeks, however, go far beyond those limits.

On Monday five helicopters flew in to aid the trapped ranger battalion even though no transport helicopters were being used. They fired 25,000 machine gun rounds and 140 rockets.

Then the five ships flew back to Saigon, reloaded, and moved in on guerrilla positions again. The Viet Cong pulled out, leaving 112 bodies, Vietnamese military officers claim.

Kidnap Suspect Ends Her Life

CHICAGO (UPI) — A childless, recently widowed woman accused of kidnaping an 18-day-old girl because she "wanted something to love," shot and killed herself Thursday in a hotel room.

Police said Mrs. Mary Ann Dunlap, 39, who lost her husband and her father within days last month, fatally wounded herself in the abdomen with a shot from a .22 caliber revolver.

She died in surgery in Von Solbrig Hospital as doctors fought a losing battle to save her life.

Mrs. Dunlap faced charges of interstate transportation of a kidnap victim in the abduction of Lori Ann Burnham from the child's mother in Metropolis, Ill.

Agents recovered the Burnham child, unharmed, from Mrs. Dunlap and turned the baby over to its father and mother, Pfc. Larry Burnham and his wife, Rose.

Smile Helped To Bring About Cambridge Truce

BALTIMORE (AP) — A smile and the pointing finger of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy figured in the agreement to end racial strife in Cambridge, Md., the Baltimore News-Post said Thursday.

It happened last Monday, in Kennedy's Washington office, at a meeting of white and Negro leaders trying to resolve the racial troubles which had brought violence to the Eastern Shore community.

Louis Azrael, who said his information came from one of the participants at the meeting, gave this account:

Mrs. Gloria Richardson, chairman of the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee, interrupted Kennedy to say:

"This kind of talk we have been hearing for a long time."

A hopeless feeling seemed to come over the meeting. Then Kennedy broke in and pointed a finger at Mrs. Richardson.

"Mrs. Richardson. Smile!" said the attorney general. She looked at him, uncomprehending.

"Mrs. Richardson, I want you to smile," Kennedy repeated.

Finally, some others at the conference table — including several of Mrs. Richardson's Negro associates—broke into strained smiles.

Seeing them, Mrs. Richardson also smiled.

Kennedy's finger dropped. He smiled, too. Then he told Mrs. Richardson:

"That's fine, keep smiling," and cautioned her not to interrupt him again.

The attorney general said this was the first time that any of the parties had smiled, and that had been one great trouble with the negotiations.

From that moment on, Azrael said, the meeting was less tense, the people were less touchy, and the atmosphere more conducive to agreement.

Next day, the agreement was announced.

The United States is the only country with an annual consumption of shoes in excess of three pairs per capita. It accounts for nearly 40 per cent of the world output.

U. Of Md. Seeks $15.4 Million For Expansion

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, president of the University of Maryland, told the State Planning Department Thursday the university needs $15.4 million for capital improvements next year.

He said $2 million of this would be used for the first academic building on a new campus in Baltimore County. Elkins defended the choice of that county as a site for the new campus.

He said it is almost impossible to obtain enough land and facilities for a major campus in the downtown Baltimore area, where the university has embarked on expansion of its professional school facilities.

The cost of high-rise buildings downtown, Elkins added, would exceed the cost of land acquisition in the county.

Another advantage of the Baltimore County site over possible greater expansion downtown, Elkins said, is that the potential student population would come from Baltimore suburban areas.

Elkins also told department officials at a budget hearing the university's regents have examined several sites in Baltimore County and he expects to have a recommendation in September.

The university request also included $5,460,000 for a new medical school outpatient building in Baltimore and $4,236,000 for educational construction and planning at the main university campus in College Park.

Other items are $1.4 million for purchase of College Park land from the Department of the Interior, $980,000 for building improvements in Baltimore, $750,000 for agricultural research and teaching at College Park, $466,000 for facilities at the Maryland State College branch at Princess Anne and $156,000 for College Park civil defense shelters.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — A committee of the Legislative Council plans to look into reports that some automobile insurance companies discriminate against Negroes.

Del. Edgar P Silver., D-Balto 5th, chairman of the Motor Vehicles Committee, said he understood that some companies will not knowingly write an insurance policy on a Negro. The situation was called to Silver's attention by Sen. Verda F. Welcome, D-Balto 4th, a Negro.

Silver said Insurance Commissioner F. Douglass Sears has been asked to testify at a hearing set for Aug. 14.

SNOW HILL, Md. (AP) — One of Worcester County's commissioners, Walter T. Onley Jr., believes commissioners of neighboring Wicomico County also should support private development of Assateague Island.

Onley took the position that private development would benefit Salisbury businesses servicing the Eastern Shore area.

The Worcester commissioners are opposing efforts to make a national seaside park out of the 27-mile island south of Ocean City.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland's commissioner of motor vehicles believes a proposed plan to have physicians report all instances of persons fainting at the wheel would be too all-inclusive.

Commissioner John R. Jewell recommended instead that physicians report only cases of diabetics and epileptics and that the department keep records on these. Jewell made his recommendation to the Legislative Council's Committee on Motor Vehicles.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Elmer E. Dunn Sr. has resigned as treasurer of the Anne Arundel County Sanitary Commission, effective Oct. 1.

Dunn submitted his resignation after two other jobs on the commission were eliminated. These were the director's position held by J. Edward Graff and the public relations post held by Daniel S. Green.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Academy of Sciences is accepting nominations for its fifth annual award to Maryland's "Outstanding Young Scientist of the Year."

A bronze plaque and a $500 check will be presented to the winner. Nominees must be scientists living and working in Maryland who have not reached the age of 35 by Sept. 30, 1963.

Two Bandits Rob Baltimore Tavern

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two bandits held up a South Baltimore tavern Thursday and made off with $2,000 to $3,000, the proprietor of the place reported.

William Palmer, 56, said one of the men held him and eight customers at bay with a sawed-off shotgun while the other vaulted the bar and took the money from a safe.

'Draft Barry' Organization Formed In Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A "Draft Goldwater Committee" has been formed in Maryland, with headquarters in Baltimore.

The organization backing Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for president notified the secretary of state's office Thursday that it had named Paul T. McHenry Jr. as treasurer, with the appointment to continue until Dec. 1, 1964.

The group described itself as "a political committee which advocates the nomination and election of Barry Goldwater of Arizona as President of the United States in the 1964 primary and general elections."

The notification, required by law of all political organizations, was signed by Robert P. Conrad Jr., Wilfred C. Wright, Robert W. Wagner, David Wright Jr., Frank X. Wells, Richard H. Henkle, William Davis, Paul T. McHenry Jr., and one other person whose name could not be determined from the signature.

Soldier Commended For Honesty

FT. MEADE (AP) — "Sir, I think you dropped this," said PFC Thomas A. Loren of Chicago as he returned a check to a stranger in a restaurant at nearby Odenton, Md.

The check was for $1,095, the equivalent of a soldier's yearly pay.

The stranger was George T. Hudney, who works out of the Silver Spring, Md., office of the Maryland Income Tax Division.

Recalling the incident Tuesday in a letter to Loren's commanding officer, Hudnet said the soldier returned the check face down, indicating that he had not even looked at the amount of the check.

Hudnet said the letter of commendation was the best he could do in appreciation since the check represented state funds.

Verdict Withheld In Appeal Case

OAKLAND — Associate Judge Stuart F. Hamill heard the appeals of John Keister in Garrett County Circuit Court yesterday but withheld issuing a verdict until a later date.

Keister, who operates the Rustic Inn, each of Grantsville on U. S. Route 40 at what was formerly known as Guntertown, was charged in June with two violations in the sale and possession of beer.

He was tried July 1 before Magistrate Robert M. Maroney here and found guilty on one charge but not guilty of the other. The two cases are tied in with each other and the double appeal was instituted in the Circuit Court.

State's Attorney Fred Thayer presented the state's case.

Quake Rocks Italy

CAMERINO, Italy (UPI) — A strong earthquake Thursday rocked this village near the Adriatic Sea.

There were no reports of any injuries or damages. The tremor, registered five on the one-to-10 graded Mercalli scale used to measure quake intensity.

This area was rocked by a series of earthquakes several months ago. For the past six days, earthquakes have been occurring over scattered parts of north and central Italy but there has been little damage.

Rugged individualism provided protection for home, family and farm, and built America. Right now, new dangers present rural families with the same challenge to equip themselves to survive a time of attack, then come out fighting and ready to carry on.

To a great extent, national security rests on the ability of rural people to resume food and fiber production after an emergency. This means farmers need to know how to produce under radioactive conditions, just as they know how to cope with hail, flood, cold, insects, and disease.

Officers Arrested

PARIS (UPI) — Five French army officers and one non-commissioned officer were arrested and charged with having been in touch with the Secret Army Organization (OAS) leader ex-Col. Pierre Chateau-Jobert, it was reported Thursday.

They were charged with crimes against the security of the state. Court sources said they admitted contact with Chateanu - Jobert, whose organization has sworn to overthrow the De Gaulle government.

NAAWP Files Papers

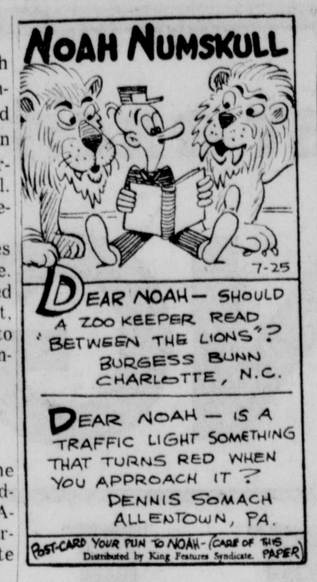
COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The National Association for the Advancement of White People (NAAWP) has filed articles of incorporation with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

The purpose clause said a nonprofit corporation would be formed to "promote a nationwide fellowship of men and women united by a common loyalty to the American way of life and dedicated to the cause of developing and preserving a law-abiding society."

Headquarters would be in Cincinnati.

Pharmacist Picked

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — Ann Dinardi, Morgantown, has been named West Virginia's outstanding pharmacist of the year by the State Pharmaceutical Association. Miss Dinardi received the award from Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., and C. H. Traubert, association president.



Farm families are too far from town to use community fallout shelters. Make a farm and family survival plan now and be prepared to face any emergency.

School children ages 6 to 16 lose an average of only 4.8 day per year due to illness or injury, the National Education Association reports.

Quake Rocks Italy

CAMERINO, Italy (UPI) — A strong earthquake Thursday rocked this village near the Adriatic Sea.

There were no reports of any injuries or damages. The tremor, registered five on the one-to-10 graded Mercalli scale used to measure quake intensity.

This area was rocked by a series of earthquakes several months ago. For the past six days, earthquakes have been occurring over scattered parts of north and central Italy but there has been little damage.

Rugged individualism provided protection for home, family and farm, and built America. Right now, new dangers present rural families with the same challenge to equip themselves to survive a time of attack, then come out fighting and ready to carry on.

Many Jokes Coming From Behind Iron Curtain

By EDWARD SHIELDS

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners are chuckling at the latest crop of Soviet bloc jokes brought back by travelers from the East.

A minor Bulgarian official is said to have met his Czech opposite number in an East Berlin hotel room after a long separation and asked him "now that we old friends are together, tell me confidentially — what do you think of President Novotny?"

His Czech friend looked scared, checked the doors and windows, turned on the bathroom taps to hide his voice from hidden microphones, and motioned the Bulgarian up close.

"Now that we are alone," he whispered, "I can tell you — I rather like the man."

It may have been the same two officials in this Hungarian story.

"I hear we are finally going to have East-West convertibility with a pound-ruble-dollar exchange rate."

"That will be great news for trade. What is the rate?"

"One pound of rubles equals one dollar."

Cosmonauts, of course, are featured in current Russian jokes.

When Valentina Tereshkova returned from space she was granted a private interview with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

"Now as a woman, your perceptions are keener than men's," Khrushchev said. "Tell me confidentially, did you see any angels in space?"

"Well, yes I did, comrade Nikita Sergeyevich."

"Well, that is shocking. You must promise me, on your party honor as a Communist, never to tell a soul."

"Why, of course, comrade."

A few weeks later Valentina is received by Pope Paul VI.

"Now, Miss Tereshkova, could you just tell me confidentially, when you were in space, did you see any angels?"

"Why no, Your Holiness, of course not."

"Please, Miss Tereshkova, you must promise, never tell a soul."

Typically Polish is the tale of two foreign trade officials, from Poland and East Germany.

The East German asks "Your foreign trade figures show great activity with both East and West. How is it done?"

"Well, our trade is based on bricks, on which our industry has been consistently overfilling its production quota."

"Well, that must mean all Poles are now well-housed."

"No. We trade the bricks to Hungary for wool."

"Oh. So your people are well-clothed."

"Oh, no. We send the wool to Yugoslavia for bacon."

"At least that means the Poles have good breakfasts."

"Not at all, we send the bacon to England for coal."

"Ah, your houses are well-heated in winter."

"Unfortunately not. You see we have to use the coal for the brick factories."

Newly revised from Russia is the story of the Communist Party central committee representative sent out to persuade Ukrainian collective farmers to increase production.

"So you see, comrades, by increasing production you increase the whole supply of good things you can share," he told a disgruntled audience in a village meeting hall.

"In fact, I think I can tell you a little secret. The central planning board foresees that in five years your collective will have its own television set."

An ancient peasant stood up at the back of the hall and mumbled "but please, comrade, I don't want a television set. What we really need are some nails, just ordinary nails, to hold a couple of boards together."

"Now comrade, I don't think you quite have the vision of our future under communism. I can even reveal that in 10 years, the planning board foresees that your collective will have its own private helicopter. Yes, comrade?"

The same old man stood, mumbling even more softly, "But we don't need helicopters. We need nails."

"Comrade," the central committee spokesman barked, "you fail to see the point. In 10 years you will see on your television set that they have nails in Minsk, and you will be able to rush over in your helicopter and be first in line."

Better than one of every eight U. S. marriages is performed in June, still the most popular month for weddings, figures show.

'Corny' Campaign

LONDON (AP) — Moscow correspondents report a campaign to make Soviet farmers grow more maize as animal food has resulted in shop windows displaying corn-on-the-cob, tins of sweet corn, a liqueur called "Amber," maize wine, popcorn, and cornflakes. Restaurants, too, are being persuaded to have more corn dishes on their menus, but to date, neither cornflakes nor other maize products seem to have "snowed under" the Russian public. What corn needs, one journalist decided, is more advertising, or a good old U. S. A. type "snow job."

"Please, Miss Tereshkova, you must promise, never tell a soul."

Typically Polish is the tale of two foreign trade officials, from Poland and East Germany.

The East German asks "Your foreign trade figures show great activity with both East and West. How is it done?"

"Well, our trade is based on bricks, on which our industry has been consistently overfilling its production quota."

"Well, that must mean all Poles are now well-housed."

"No. We trade the bricks to Hungary for wool."

"Oh. So your people are well-clothed."

"Oh, no. We send the wool to Yugoslavia for bacon."

"At least that means the Poles have good breakfasts."

"Not at all, we send the bacon to England for coal."

"Ah, your houses are well-heated in winter."

"Unfortunately not. You see we have to use the coal for the brick factories."

Newly revised from Russia is the story of the Communist Party central committee representative sent out to persuade Ukrainian collective farmers to increase production.

"So you see, comrades, by increasing production you increase the whole supply of good things you can share," he told a disgruntled audience in a village meeting hall.

"In fact, I think I can tell you a little secret. The central planning board foresees that in five years your collective will have its own television set."

An ancient peasant stood up at the back of the hall and mumbled "but please, comrade, I don't want a television set. What we really need are some nails, just ordinary nails, to hold a couple of boards together."

"Now comrade, I don't think you quite have the vision of our future under communism. I can even reveal that in 10 years, the planning board foresees that your collective will have its own private helicopter. Yes, comrade?"

The same old man stood, mumbling even more softly, "But we don't need helicopters. We need nails."

"Comrade," the central committee spokesman barked, "you fail to see the point. In 10 years you will see on your television set that they have nails in Minsk, and you will be able to rush over in your helicopter and be first in line."

Better than one of every eight U. S. marriages is performed in June, still the most popular month for weddings, figures show.

'Corny' Campaign

LONDON (AP) — Moscow correspondents report a campaign to make Soviet farmers grow more maize as animal food has resulted in shop windows displaying corn-on-the-cob, tins of sweet corn, a liqueur called "Amber," maize wine, popcorn, and cornflakes. Restaurants, too, are being persuaded to have more corn dishes on their menus, but to date, neither cornflakes nor other maize products seem to have "snowed under" the Russian public. What corn needs, one journalist decided, is more advertising, or a good old U. S. A. type "snow job."

Skates Helping To Get Jetliner Off The Ground

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—It is taking something as prosaic as roller skates to get the 560-mile-an-hour DC9 jetliner off the ground.

Douglas Aircraft Co. officially started work on the twin-jet craft last April with the first test flight scheduled for early in 1965.

Ironically development of the fast-flying DC9 was being slowed down by the hum-drum routine of delivering blueprints to engineers working in the 600,000 square foot facility. Hundreds of hours were wasted while engineers waited for delivery of blueprints from one part of the new Donald W. Douglas Engineering Center to another.

Douglas solved the problem — roller skates.

The idea was first used by the firm during World War II at a plant on Manchester Avenue. Four messengers skated up and down the halls there from 1941-44 —another period when speed was essential in processing engineering documents.

Douglas again called upon the method during the Korean War and used roller skating messengers at its El Segundo, Calif., facility from 1949 to 1953.

Now three teen-age girls, clad in capri pants, deliver blueprints of the DC9 to experts in less than half the time required on foot. Plant officials said a future prerequisite for messengers here would be an ability and willingness to roller skate.

There is no official limit to the size, weight or shape of a baseball catcher's mitt.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 290 On both sides there were enlistees in the ranks in 1861 who, in 1863, 1864, or later, were brigadier generals, major generals, lieutenant generals. (Major general was the highest rank attained in the Union Army during the war by anyone except U. S. Grant, but the Confederate army had multiple lieutenant generals and four-star generals.)

Nathan Bedford Forrest rose from private in 1861 to major general in 1863; he was a lieutenant general, aged 44, in 1865. Patrick Cleburne, an Irish immigrant to Arkansas who responded to the Confederate call for volunteers in 1861, was a major general, aged 34, in December 1862. Galusha Pennypacker of Pennsylvania who entered the Union Army as a Q. M. sergeant in 1861, when 17, was a brigadier general at 20. The advancement of Adna R. Chaffee of Ohio in the Union Army was slower, but no less distinguished. He was promoted from 19-year-old sergeant, 6th Cavalry, to lieutenant in the field in May 1863, "for gallant and meritorious services." In a matter of weeks he was advanced to captain for similarly conspicuous services.

Subsequently captured in action, Captain Chaffee refused parole, then escaped from a Confederate prison and went on fighting and gaining citations.

When the war was over, George Custer and other men who had earned the right to wear gold braid and stars accepted demotions to lesser ranks in the Regular Army. Chaffee went back to the 6th Cavalry to fight Indians in the Southwest and climb from captain to stars for good. Eventually his string of commendations included ones given him as brigade commander in Cuba in the Spanish-American War, and as over-all commander of the U.S.A. forces in the allied expedition to Peking during the Boxer Rebellion.

College Students Usually Classified Into 3 Types

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—A man who served for 23 years as president of the University of Michigan says students usually can be classified into three types.

They are the noisy ones, the playboys (and girls), and the dedicated ones, says Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president emeritus, who was in office 1929-1951. He describes them in his autobiographical "Naturalist in Two Worlds" (University of Michigan Press).

The noisy ones, said Dr. Ruthven, "are determined to be heard from the time they enter college. Posing as authorities on almost everything at home and abroad, they insist they should run the University. . .They usually claim to be liberals and boast of disrespect for authority. Common status symbols are. . .soiled shoes, jeans, shorts, untidy hair, and occasionally mangy beards.

These students should disturb no one. One can usually assure that their activities represent growing pains. My disappointment with them as I have seen them later as alumni is that very few become liberal leaders and many become distressingly ultraconservative."

The educator said the "playboys (and girls)" had "in my experience" been a small group. He said that "complaints are often heard about the waste of money and time of instruction in trying to educate those whose ambition is to get nothing more than a 'gentleman's grade" or to get married."

"The critics fail to take into consideration the number of these students who find themselves after they have entered college and go on to success as alumni and citizens," Dr. Ruthven wrote.

"The dedicated ones," he continued, "more than any others make life worth living for their teachers" because they come to college "with their eyes firmly fixed on at least a general goal. ". . .Once called 'grinds' by the playboys and considered poor college citizens by the noisy ones, these men and women have in later years gained the more respectable title of 'eggheads'. Neither are these terms is appropriate."

Mr. Jackson Is Out

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Whenever "Cutthroat Hawkins," a stuffed hawk, and a marble bust of Andrew Jackson disappear from the University of Arizona Art Department, few people are too concerned.

Jackson's bust, also known as "Wandering Andrew," and the hawk are kidnapped regularly by art students who use them as models. Since the removal is verboten, the vanishing duo is always returned in secret.

Indian Basket Is Stamped "Hong Kong"

ANADARKO, Okla. (UPI) — Tourists in Oklahoma often are shocked to find that the Indian basket they bought at Laughing Wolf's trading post is stamped "Made in Hong Kong."

The Oriental artisan has made a big impact on the Indian handicraft trade, a major tourist business in Oklahoma.

The Indians are quick to admit that Wun Lee Hi in Yokohama can make a doeskin moccasin cheaper—and often better—than can Little Running Fawn in Broken Arrow, Okla.

Ruth Cox, president of a $100,000 Anadarko tourist attraction called Indian City, says her shops sell both authentic Indian craft and imitations from the Far East.

"Take these two pieces of beadwork for example," Miss Cox challenged a visitor. "Which do you think is the real McCoy?"

The tourist picked the better-looking piece.

"Wrong," Miss Cox said. "It's the other one."

The beadwork done by the American Indian was priced at $15. The imitation from Hong Kong cost $10.

"We could even price it lower and make a profit, but we want to encourage Indian work," said Miss Cox.

About the only thing that cannot be duplicated by the Oriental craftsmen is the Indian war bonnet with real eagle feathers. The United States prohibits the exporting of eagle feathers.

Even so, the Japanese turn out a pretty good imitation, using Asian vulture feathers that fool most tourists.

Suggestions Are Given To Make Travel Easier

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some ways to make travel easier, a trip more enjoyable this summer.

—If going by car, tuck a pillow or two in the back, especially if traveling with children. A pillow makes for extra comfort on a long ride, and cushion for a nap by a small one.

—If by car, pack also a paper garbage bag supply. Use the bags to collect gum wrappers, remains of ice cream cones, paper handkerchiefs and such, to keep the car neater.

—A motor trip seems to create thirst at the most inconvenient times. To fill the need between rest stations, pack a thermos of ice water or not-too-sweet lemonade.

—If going by train or plane on a long trip, tuck a sleeping mask in your purse. Shuts out light during a daytime catnap or for the longer hours you'll try to sleep on a night trip.

—Tuck also into your purse a pair of stretch knit socks. Most airlines on overseas flight supply these, but not all. They provide a break from high heels.

—Packing itself is simplified with a list, started several days before departure. You'll find yourself adding items you might otherwise have overlooked—wash cloth, soap, shower cap, sun glasses, vitamin pills, and you'll find also that as you spell out the basic clothing you plan to take, listing simplifies the planning of accessories — lingerie, scarves, jewelry, belts, shoes. Run a quick checkoff just before you close the luggage.

Most women who travel regularly keep a packing list always in the suitcase, I've found. Always packed: a small, folding sewing kit including straight and safety pins, and a cosmetics kit brought up to date as supplies run low.

—Don't overpack. How many times this advice comes from the travel wardrobe experts, and how often ignored! Check in advance with airlines, travel agents or guide books on the general climate and the dress habits of the parts of the world you're visiting. Select clothing according to local custom, and according to your activities.

The biggest sea-air action ever joined was the Battle of Leyte Gulf, Philippines, from Oct. 22 to Oct. 27, 1944, with 166 U. S. and 65 Japanese warships engaged, of which 26 Japanese and six U. S. were sunk.

There are 50 species of birds of paradise.

LENS LIKES LLAMA—Debra Jean Lovell, 11, of Hyannis, Mass., finds this llama very cooperative as she focuses her camera at the Animal Forest in York Beach, Maine. Debra also enjoyed photographing some of the other hundreds of loose, but tame, animals that roam through the Animal Forest.

The term Tartar is applied to certain tribes originally inhabiting Manchuria and Mongolia.

The water hen or moor hen is a bird which lives in Europe and North Africa.

New B&O Deputy Comptroller Named

John T. Ford, general auditor of the C&O Railway at Cleveland, has been named deputy comptroller of the B&O Railroad.

The B&O also announced the appointment of LeRoy Hurt as assistant to the comptroller at Baltimore. He had been auditor in charge of revenue accounting for the C&O at Richmond.

Large Crowd Is Expected For Church Camp Meeting

A capacity turnout is expected for the all-day camp meeting being sponsored Saturday at the Union Grove Campgrounds by Bedford Road Baptist Church.

Rev. Allen J. Beck, pastor of the Bedford Road Church, said he has received numerous calls from ministers and laymen who welcome the return of the camp meeting.

Once a prominent part of the religious life of the community, camp meetings traditionally were held in mid-summer before harvest time. The popular programs, Rev. Mr. Beck said, featured congregational singing and preaching.

One of the ministers who will preach Saturday is Rev. Howard Van Sice, pastor of First Baptist Church, Elkton. No stranger to this area, Rev. Mr. Van Sice conducted a series of evangelistic services this spring at Bedford Road Church.

Rev. Mr. Van Sice will preach twice on Saturday. He will speak on "The Bible, The Word of God" at 10 a. m., and on "The Second Coming of Jesus Christ," which will be the closing message at 8:45 p. m.

A graduate of Bob Jones University, he has been pastor of the Elkton church ten years. Rev. Mr. Van Sice is moderator of the Sus Baptist Association, composed of 42 churches and missions.

He will preach at the morning and evening services Sunday at First English Baptist Church, Frostburg.

Gilbert South, Baltimore, business manager of the Baptist Convention of Maryland, will lead congregational singing at the camp meeting, and Miss Mary Robb will be pianist.

Also featured will be vocal selections by the Simpson Brothers, of whom there are seven. Singing will be Roy M., Wood, Kenneth, Darrel, John and Lewis Simpson. The seventh brother, Rev. Marvin Simpson, recently accepted a call to the pastorate of Champlain Valley Baptist Church, Plattsburgh, N. Y.

Rev. Mr. Beck said the Union Grove Campgrounds has a covered tabernacle that seats more than 450 and that side curtains can be lowered in the event of inclement weather.

Heart Victims To Get Assistance

The importance of rehabilitation of victims of heart diseases has been highlighted by an announcement from the American Heart Association that it has signed an agreement with the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The agreement, spokesmen said, is aimed at expanding and improving services to the recovered heart patient and the young person with heart disease.

The announcement also coincides with the program for the second Cardiac Seminar to be held here September 26 under sponsorship of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association and District 1, Maryland State Nurses Association.

One of the panels for the seminar will be on "Rehabilitation," of which John Cobun is chairman of arrangements. Cobun is a counselor with the State Department of Education's Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the Heart Association, said the newly-signed agreement which calls for the two associations to work closely together at all levels will but intensify the cooperation already in effect between her office and Cobun's.

The agreement, she continued, will make available many more services and facilities to the individuals handicapped by cardiovascular disease.

The areas in which the Heart Association and Rehabilitation Administration will work together are primarily in case finding and referral, in wider use of work evaluation units, in training of professional personnel for counseling of cardiac patients, in research, consulting services and community education.

Disappearing Books

BERLIN (AP)—For two years the West Berlin Post Office has been seeking a foolproof way of attaching telephone directories to public telephone booths.

Whatever they have tried, even using steel grips, the directories have been ripped away by vandals.

So many have been stolen that district post offices have run out of new directories and have to put old ones in the booths.

State Cigaret Tax Revenue Decreases

Sales of cigarets in Allegany County showed a decrease during the past fiscal year from the period ending June 30, 1962.

The report of State Comptroller Louis Goldstein showed that during the year ending June 30, Allegany County received $262,083.02.

This is $21,010 less than the $283,093 received during fiscal year 1962 ending June 30, 1962.

Garrett County, meanwhile, will receive a total of $63,934.25 as its slice of the revenue pie, baked by the tax on cigaret sales, assessments and stamps within the state.

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein stated today that the total distribution to the local subdivisions (each of the 23 counties and the City of Baltimore) amounts to $11,022,044.11, a decrease of $231,758.83 from last year's total.

Allegany County's share was compiled through quarter figures of $67,949.22, $66,648.92, $58,765.64, and $68,719.24, in that order, for fiscal 1963.

The biggest check will go to Baltimore City in the amount of $3,605,554.21. However, Baltimore City's share was adjusted and increased $468,943.57 in order to meet the amount of distribution guaranteed by law.

Receiving the smallest cut was Kent County. It amounted to $50,487.29.

Macaque, the so-called Barbary ape, is found only in North Africa and on the Rock of Gibraltar.

SCS Observes Safety Week

National Farm Safety Week is being observed this week by Soil Conservation Service with the theme, "Inspection plus correction equal protection."

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist here said that drownings account for 13 per cent of fatal farm accidents in Maryland. There are 90 such ponds in Allegany County which are used for various purposes including livestock water, fire protection, irrigation and recreation.

Mr. Gordon listed safety rules to follow in the three steps toward completion of a farm pond.

Before building consider water source, location, soil type. Comply with state laws by having pond properly designed then built by a reliable contractor. The SCS can advise on these procedures.

During construction all tree stumps, rocks and debris should be removed from pond area and sudden dropoffs and deep places filled.

After completion owner should recognize pond hazards for small children. If pond is used for swimming life saving devices including rope, long pole and boat should be kept at pond, and the safety rule of never swimming alone should be observed. When boating, non-swimmers should wear life - jackets.

road. She said she had to restrain scene and held her while she called police.

Mrs. Helmick said that Mr. Propst had been abusive to the children and cursed them and beat them on numerous occasions. She also said that Mr. Propst had been ill recently and seemed easily upset.

The two children, Rickey and Bonnie have a brother, Lloyd Edward Harrison, III, who is on duty with the Army in Japan.

They are the children of Lloyd Edward Harrison II, of 644 North Centre Street. The Harrisons were divorcd a number of years ago and both remarried.

Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, county medical evaminer also participated in the investigation and was to perform autopisies early this morning.

Police had not completed their investigation by press time and the bodies were removed by Silcox Service about midnight.

Dr. Skitarlic and the investigators said the condition of the bodies indicated that the shooting took place about midday, and their tentative opinion was that Mr. Propst had shot the girl, the boy and then himself.

"Eliminate price-depressing surpluses and clear the way for higher per family net farm incomes through a healthier supply-demand situation by bringing production into line with current market requirements."

Rep. Mathias concluded his statement by noting that the May 21 defeat of the wheat referendum "was a challenge to produce a sound farm program and an opportunity to make a fresh start."

Railroads Take Down Notices

More than 3,000 railroad workers on the Cumberland Division of the B&O and employes of the Western Maryland Railway will continue on the job as a result of an agreement by the railroads to postpone their new work rules for 30 days.

Deadline for the work rule changes to go into effect had been next Tuesday at midnight and as a result the B&O had sent notices to individual employes in which their jobs were being abolished as of that time due to the threatened strike of on-train employes.

This is the second recall of job abolishment notices by the B&O. The first occurred just prior to the scheduled walkout of trainmen on July 11.

This was averted by President Kennedy's action in naming a special panel to report on the dispute and make recommendations. These recommendations are now before the two Congressional committees.

SCS Observes Safety Week

National Farm Safety Week is being observed this week by Soil Conservation Service with the theme, "Inspection plus correction equal protection."

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist here said that drownings account for 13 per cent of fatal farm accidents in Maryland. There are 90 such ponds in Allegany County which are used for various purposes including livestock water, fire protection, irrigation and recreation.

Mr. Gordon listed safety rules to follow in the three steps toward completion of a farm pond.

Before building consider water source, location, soil type. Comply with state laws by having pond properly designed then built by a reliable contractor. The SCS can advise on these procedures.

During construction all tree stumps, rocks and debris should be removed from pond area and sudden dropoffs and deep places filled.

After completion owner should recognize pond hazards for small children. If pond is used for swimming life saving devices including rope, long pole and boat should be kept at pond, and the safety rule of never swimming alone should be observed. When boating, non-swimmers should wear life - jackets.

Ulysses Baxter Accomplishes Goal

Just when things were looking particularly grim—a nationwide rail strike threatened, 24 million bushels of the taxpayers' grain lost, violence on the domestic front, new troubles in Syria and Viet Nam and a worrisome outflow of U. S. gold reserves — Ulysses Baxter came through. He nosed a peanut all the way up Pike's Peak, accompanied by a rock and roll music combo.

Some may feel Ulysses' energy was misspent, that there are more important challenges confronting the nation than rolling a peanut up a mountain. But that misses the point. Sometimes when the world's problems seem overpowering, a man seeks reassurance by tackling a smaller, more possible feat.

Some men go fishing, others collect stamps or watch birds and now and then a man goes over Niagara Falls in a barrel or walks across the country. Younger men swallow goldfish. pack telephone booths or paint class numerals on million-year-old rocks along the roadside.

In the end all seem to feel better for this diversion and return refreshed to the larger battles of existence. Ulysses, rolling the peanut up Pikes Peak, accomplished his goal. What others may think of that goal is not important.

He is the first man to roll a peanut up there, and that he will always be, come what may in Syria or in Congress.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Romney Improves The Day

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The fifty-fifth annual Governors Conference, which brought an unusual midsummer crush to some of Miami Beach's better hotels, tried its best to get down to the sober business of considering administrative topics that might be of equal interest to state executives in Vermont and Mississippi. It was obvious all along, however, that the chief issue agitating the participants was next year's Presidential election. The sad thing about the whole affair resided in its disclosure that it is practically impossble for a professional politician who has been bitten by the Presidential bug to distinguish between a hatchet and a boomerang.

Wielding a well-honed blade, Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York succeeded in nicking the hides of practically every Democratic governor who was present. The Rockefeller effort to force the conference to make a unified statement on such matters as a public accommodation law for negroes put the Democrats, who included segregationists Wallace and Barnett, very much on the spot. Fourteen Republican governors were happy to accept the discomfiture of the Democrats in this matter. But, perversely, it did Rockefeller no good with most of the Republicans who were present. So, as far as the Rockefeller hatchet was concerned, it turned into a boomerang as it affected the New York Governor's own cause. The boomerang also hit Oregon's Governor Hatfield, who associated himself with Rocky's efforts.

While Rockefeller was busy kicking the Democratic governors without adding to his own popularity among Republicans, Governor George Romney of Michigan looked like the cat who had just eaten the canary. Though he continued to disclaim any Presidential aspirations, Romney used the conference to make a high-level case for himself as a constructive statesman. He deplored the fact that the civil rights issue was being used to divert the governors from considering such things as state sovereignty in welfare matters. At the same time he observed that Michigan, acting as a humane state, had had a public accommodation law requiring restaurants and hotels to serve negroes as well as whites ever since 1888, when Grover Cleveland was still in his first Presidential term. Finally, Romney came up with a suggestion that "accentuated the positive" in the vexing business of trying to improve the international balance of payments situation that has been running against the United States.

The Kennedy approach to the problem of the gold drain, as Romney has observed it, is punitive. To cut down on the outflow of American dollars, Kennedy has cracked down on the amount of purchases that tourists are permitted to bring in without paying a duty. He has also proposed penalizing Americans who would like to buy such international stocks as Royal Dutch Shell or Volkswagen or Imperial Chemicals.

Such measures may serve to lessen the pressure on U.S. gold stocks, but they also stand to decrease the total amount of business done in the western world. Thus they give aid and comfort to the Communists.

Romney's proposed way of limiting the gold drain would be to give special advantages to U.S. companies that sell abroad. But he did not suggest anything as controversial as a straight export subsidy. His idea would be to let our big manufacturing companies engage in a species of individual, tariff-free barter agreements with foreign producers. Picking Michigan automobile companies as his example, he outlined a hypothetical situation as it might affect trade with Canada. To the extent that an American automobile manufacturer might use Canadian-made aluminum parts in his cars, that much aluminum might be allowed to come into the U.S. from Canada without the payment of a tariff.

A similar concession might be made on African copper used in the manufacture of American automobiles. Conversely, the U.S. would be expected to try for an equivalent reduction of penalties on the export of Michigan cars to Canada or South Africa.

The Romney proposal would serve to maximize the amount of business done throughout the free world. But it would do this without adding to the pressure on the U.S. gold reserve.

In offering his idea to the assembled governors while Rockefeller and Hatfield were busy confusing hatchets with boomerangs, Romney clearly added to his own stature.

National Union Power Approaching End Of Rope

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy's message to Congress on the labor dispute which has threatened a nationwide railroad strike is essentially fair in every respect. It affords little comfort, however, to either the unions or the railroads because it merely postpones until a later day the final solution of the problems involved. Will both sides come to realize—as well as many unions and employers in other industries —that national union power could be approaching the end of its rope?

The huge cost and widespread injury that could result from a railroad strike are well understood throughout the country, and the American people are in the mood to go along with any solution that will spare them such a hardship. But the fact remains that nationally organized labor unions now wield such economic power that, to avert tragic strikes, the government has to step in and do more than merely mediate a dispute.

For, in this instance, Congress is asked to give the Interstate Commerce Commission full authority to prescribe a settlement. It isn't called "compulsory arbitration." Yet it means an order to both sides to take certain steps outlined by a government agency.

America's economic mechanism has grown so complex that, under the commerce clause of the Constitution, the federal government has been assuming that it has the legal right to regulate not only the transportation industry, but also the wage conditions and working arrangements in virtually all industries, whether or not they are public utilities.

From a legal and constitutional viewpoint, there is no doubt that Congress possesses the power to write laws to control the national economy by stipulating the wages and hours and working conditions that shall prevail in most industries. But it had been hoped that, under a free-enterprise system, "collective bargaining" — namely, voluntary agreements — would be the method used to set wages. Despite all the disclaimers that collective bargaining is still to be maintained, the fact remains that, in this instance at least, collective bargaining now has been brushed aside and government action through special laws has become necessary.

Labor - union leaders never dreamed that any such situation would come to pass. They always assumed that, by strikes in local areas and "collective bargaining," they could achieve their ends without such intervention of government. Now the picture has changed because, as the President outlined his message, the damage of a railroad strike would be incredibly great and irreparable.

The Interstate Commerce Commission heretofore has exercised its powers in the rail industry primarily in regulating rates for freight and passengers, but in recent years has also been authorized to protect the job security of employes when there are mergers. From this, it now is being inferred by President Kennedy ployes from bearing the full cost that the commission has authority to deal with the impact of the new work rules which the railroads wish to apply because of automation and other developments which have cut down the need for as many employes as before. The president says in his message to Congress:

"There is no reason why these principles and procedures, if they are applicable to the employment security problems raised by railroad mergers and mass transit modernization, are not equally applicable to the employment security problems raised by railroad modernization and mechanization.

"An expert body should pass on these proposed rule changes in the light of public service and safety; and it should also make provision to prevent the em- of technical or economic progress, so long as priority is given to agreements privately reached by the parties themselves."

The Interstate Commerce Commission is to be given two years in which to work out an agreement. It will listen to the proposals of both sides in the dispute and take into account any agreements they might reach in the interim. To this extent, collective bargaining, theoretically at least, is being maintained.

As far as the cost of the transition is concerned, the President says that "the nation as a whole, which shares in the benefits, would also bear part of the burden imposed by advancing railroad technology." The President adds:

"The government has some obligation to assist those adversely affected by governmental decisions which are required in the national interest; and there is little logic in protecting the economy by methods which also lead to increased unemployment and more distressed areas. The unfairness of placing the entire burden of readjustment costs upon either the carriers of the workers is an additional reason why legislation is particularly appropriate in this case."

Mr. Kennedy is convinced that there will be problems of this nature coming up in other industries and that the principle of government intervention and assistance should be recognized as necessary. So despite all the talk about "compulsory arbitration" and other devices that have been used in the past, it is plain that a new factor has entered the scene — namely, governmental intervention and governmental designation of the rules that must be followed in settling labor disputes.

Disappointment will be felt by labor unions generally which had believed that they could exercise national power on a private basis without being subject to governmental discipline. The enormity of the problem, however, and the helplessness of the labor unions themselves in dealing with the rise of unemployment due to automation have brought a change that nobody really wants but that has become invitable.

GOLDWATER RUNAWAY — Some Republican Party leaders around the country are taking steps to keep Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona conservative, from running away with the GOP 1964 presidential nomination.

Some of this movement stems from a philosophical opposition to Goldwater's principles, but a lot of it is a simple professional desire not to see the party commit itself to something it may regret later.

The movement to check Goldwater takes the form of holding state delegations by pledging them to "favorite son" candidates. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and a number of others are certain to enter the convention next year with their delegates firmly tied to their own chosen leaders until they are released.

In this way, Goldwater advocates will not be able to roll up a majority of delegates pledged to vote for him even before the convention meets. The idea at this stage is not necessarily to "stop" Goldwater, but to keep him from getting too far ahead of other possible candidates so that the convention can work its will under political conditions that will exist a year from now.

Many Republicans seriously doubt that Goldwater would be the best possible GOP candidate to run against President John F. Kennedy next year. They want to make sure that their party's candidate will make the best possible vote-getter.

Many of the delegates who will be tied to favorite sons of their states probably stand ready to vote for Goldwater when they are released. However, the favorite sons themselves hold potentially vast power to dictate who the GOP candidate will be.

If these leaders can get together on a single candidate, they could throw their combined states' delegates to him, creating a stampede on the convention floor. The problem for them is to settle on a single acceptable candidate, no easy task when this person most likely will be one of the favorite sons himself.

Facial Paralysis And Crocodile Tears

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The crocodile while eating, sheds tears by the cupful. We don't know whether he is weeping about devouring his victim or because this is just a peculiarity of the beast. At any rate, man sheds crocodile tears occasionally and the term is well chosen because the eyes water profusely at every meal.

This bizarre phenomenon follows facial paralysis of the Bell's palsy type, head injury, brain tumor, or shingles. Crocodile tears appear several months after the paralysis comes on. This complication is not a common aftermath of these lesions. Tearing is uncontrolable and leads to considerable embarrassment when eating in restaurants.

An English surgeon found that crocodile tears seldom occurred without antecedent facial paralysis. He also learned that certain nerves degenerated and, in time, new sprouts developed that connected the tear stimulators with the salivary pathways. Thinking about or chewing food stimulated the flow of saliva and tears.

The physician conducted other experiments and discovered that severing a certain nerve near the ear gave immediate and complete relief from crying.

One of his patients, a 40-year-old woman, had sustained severe Bell's palsy eight years previously. There was marked lacrimation for more than six years, even though she had recovered from the facial paralysis. Tears would well up in the lower lid on the affected side within a minute or two after starting to eat. Cutting the nerve brought immediate relief.

Another patient, an executive of 50, had suffered from Bell's palsy three years previously, from which he recovered slowly and incompletely. Eight months after the disease came on, he started crocodile-tearing when eating. This disturbed him greatly, especially when lunching with business associates. After resection of the involved nerve, he could eat comfortable and without this annoying gustatory lacrimation.

TOMORROW: Sudden attacks of sleep.

The physician usually tries to find out what is depressing the bone marrow. It may be a drug, an infection, or a disease of the bone marrow.

REPLY

Yes, for esthetic reasons if nothing else.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

JERRY BEATTY tells about the tourist in Maine who came to a fork in the road, where signs to Portland pointed both ways. The tourist turned to a down-easter standing nearby and inquired, "Does it make any difference which road I take to Portland?" The down-easter answered, "Not to me."

Theatrical producer Jed Harris tells of a time when he and the late George Kaufman were seeking a young juvenile actor for a part in their Broadway production, "The Royal Family." Kaufman heard that there was a promising young actor named Guido Nadso trying out in a new play in New Haven, and took a train there to look him over. Sadly he sent a telegram to Jed Harris at midnight. All he said was "Nadso Guido."

H. Allen Smith treasures copies of these three letters he sent home to fond parents by assorted precocious children at summer camp:

1. Dear Mommy: Please bring some food when you come to visit me. All we get here is breakfast, lunch, and supper.

2. Dear Mom: Three of the girls in my tent have the dire rear.

3. Dear Dad: Please write often even if it is only a couple of dollars.

Inspection Against Surprise Attack Precedent Set During Cuban Crisis

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Premier Khrushchev's proposal to place military missions inside Russia and the United States to guard against surprise military build-up sounds like a revolutionary proposal.

But what most people don't know is that exactly this was done during the Cuban crisis.

Last October as the two most powerful nations in the world were looking down the gun barrel of atomic war, the United States had helicopters flying over East Germany to make sure the Red Army was not rolling up troops for an attack on Berlin. Simultaneously the Red Army had helicopters flying over West Germany to watch for the same regarding the United States.

This was no accident, but by long-standing agreement that both the United States and Russia may station military missions on East and West German soil to check on possible surprise attacks.

The fact that the Red Army was not mobilizing in Eastern Europe was one reason President Kennedy felt more confident there would be no war over Cuba.

Extension of this plan to the entire United States and Russia to prevent surprise attack would really indicate that Khrushchev means business when he talks peace.

Plumbers Vs. Lawyers

AFL-CIO President George Meany was testifying on civil rights before the House Judiciary Committee, a group composed entirely of lawyer - congressmen. Chairman Manny Celler of New York interrupted:

"You probably are not a lawyer, Mr. Meany," he observed.

"I have often been thankful for that," gruffly responded Meany. "My profession is much more important. I am a plumber."

JFK And Dirksen Agree

President Kennedy and Senate GOP Leader Everett Dirksen, separately pondering the threat of a railroad strike, came up with almost identically the same solution last week.

Early Monday morning, the President invited Congressional leaders to the White House to listen to his idea of turning the railroad dispute over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

After Kennedy explained his proposal, Dirksen pulled a handwritten memo out of his pocket.

"Mr. President," he said, "I had no way to know what you were thinking. But I also gave this problem a lot of thought over the weekend. I came up with the following. I would like to read it."

Then he read his own proposal to refer the dispute to the ICC and forbid a strike while a settlement was being worked out.

Kennedy grinned.

"This is a pleasant surprise," he said.

But opposition was expressed by Dirksen's Republican colleagues, House GOP Leader Charlie Halleck of Indiana and Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater, who wanted a tougher law by which the government could stop a railroad strike by injunction.

Oregon's bristle-browed Senator Wayne Morse promptly objected.

"This would substitute the power of injunction in place of reason and collective bargaining," he protested.

Most of the leaders behind closed White House doors nodded their agreement.

Thumbing Ride With JFK

Suzanne Woods, an enterprising secretary on the staff of Sen. Dan Inouye, the Hawaiian Democrat, was out in California last month while President Kennedy was also on the West Coast, and managed to thumb her way back on a Presidential plane. However, it cost her her job.

What happened was that Miss Woods found herself without funds, and it being a long way back to Washington, she telephoned Larry O'Brien, assistant to President Kennedy, explained that she was on the staff of Democratic Senator Inouye and asked for a ride home on the President's plane.

The obliging Mr. O'Brien obliged, gave Miss Woods a ride to Washington on the President's back-up plane.

Later the White House called Sen. Inouye's office, said that they had been delighted to be of help to the Senator's secretary.

At this point, Sen. Inouye fired Miss Woods. He explained that he did not want his staff throwing their weight around, also objected to the general principle of free rides on government planes. Inouye has been careful not to take these rides himself, even though as a badly wounded, one-armed veteran of World War II he is entitled to them.

Miss Woods, a lady of twenty, with plenty of initiative, has now got a job in New York with the International Students and is quite happy.

Replacing Bible Reading

To replace prayer and Bible reading in the schools, Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., is proposing a plan to study the effects of crime and dishonesty in the public schools of the nation.

The Congressman from Northern Florida has been alarmed at the high juvenile delinquency rate in Washington and other big cities; also at the fact that 200,000 books each year are stolen from the Brooklyn Public Library, and that the rate of embezzlement in banks and business firms has been growing.

So he proposes that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare encourage the schools to teach courses on crime and its results on a person, a family, and the community.

"A crime expert who shows a class of teen-agers graphically what will happen when they take the first small step toward dishonesty," says Rep. Bennett, "might have more impact in the schools than reading dull passages from the Bible."

The Congressman is a great devotee of the Bible, but since it has now been outlawed believes something should take its place.

What's so funny about golf?

To my way of thinking, it is a serious game played by all-purpose nuts. Once, going up a hill, I hit a ball and, when it neared the top, it turned left and came all the way down, and I lost 10 yards on the play. Did my friends say: "Oh boy. What a shot?" They did not. They fell down laughing.

Dick Brooks, a cartoonist, has written a book called "The Offensive Golfer." He thinks it is funny. I don't. It's golf gospel. The main problem, as he sees it, is not trying to hit the ball, but rather trying to get out of the house. The game is almost anticlimactic compared with the plotting that a man goes through trying to sneak out a window with a bag of clubs.

The worst thing that can happen is to have the Mrs. decide to play golf with you. Brooks knows a course where they have a memorial built to a man who tried to teach the game to his wife. She finished him off with three swings of a nine iron, although the caddies insist she'd have done the job in one if she had kept her head down.

To get out of the house alone, don't ever tell the lady that golf will prolong your life. It will get you nowhere. Tell her it will shorten your life. Brooks believes in selling golf as "nature's tranquilizer." I don't. Tell the wife that it will give you high blood pleasure, hardening of the artilleries, and, for every nine strokes on a hole, you get one cerebral free, and she'll let you go.

Of course, my wife and I play golf together. The problem is not getting out of the house, but rather, trying to get back in. After any of our matches, the temperature is always 20 degrees cooler. Kelly isn't exactly tense, but I have seen her come home, stick a package of cigarettes in her mouth, and try to light it with a can of beer.

The togetherness of golf is best exemplified in the oldest joke, the one where the hacker is about to hit a ball across a road when he sees a funeral approaching. At once, he pauses in his swing, takes his hat off, and holds it over his heart. One of his opponents whines: "Okay with the hat bit arready. Why you gotta show so much respect for the dead?" The golfer put his hat on, and addressed the ball again. "I should," he murmured. "She was a good wife to me for 20 years."

Brooks is the sneaky type. He suggests a false wall in the car trunk for hiding golf clubs. Golfers should not be ashamed of their psychoses. On the other hand, if the wife suspects that you play golf just to look at lady golfers in shorts, take her to the course and permit her to see some of the bags walking by with walnut-burled legs. It will make her feel better, and you worse.

Like most other jaded golfers, the author realizes that there is no such thing as a basic grip, or basic swing. You just haul off and belt the ball. Brooks uses what he calls his Iron-Clad Tension swing, which is nothing more than sheer hatred backed by muscles. This will get you somewhere, but not, of course, on the course. The great artist, Burris Jenkins, tried it once and ran out of golf balls on the fourth green. The rest of the way, he hit a badminton bird.

On the other hand, I must subscribe to Dr. Brooks' analysis when he says that a man, standing up to a golf ball armed only with a club, undergoes shortness of breath, tightness in the chest, a curling of the toes, back ache, clenched teeth, locked knees, muscle spasm, paralysis and neurocirculatory aesthesia. In other words, he's ready to hit.

Still, even this preparatory work can be carried too far. Some take additional time to analyze their fears, which are: Graviphobia, a fear of falling down; Phobiphobia, a fear of having too many fears; Futophobia, fear of missing the ball completely; Rootophobia, fear of hitting too far under the ball; Chokophobia, fear of the esophagus closing tight. The last fear only proves that the golfer is paying attention and has correctly assessed the crisis at hand.

"As a final check," Brooks says, "try to think of a beautiful blonde in sweater and shorts. If you can't possibly imagine what one looks like, you are ready. You are in the Hypnotic Brain Lock." So far as gripping the club is concerned, mine is best described as a man trying to strangle a clam with two hands. Brooks says his is like a man dangling over a cliff hanging onto a three-quarter inch rope.

It doesn't matter really. I can kick a ball further than I can hit one. The only thing that the golfer must remember at all times is that the hole never moves. The idea is to get the ball to the spot where the hole is waiting. Brooks says that the hole moved on only one occasion in the history of golf.

Twenty Minute Twaxby was on the green, poised for putting. No one knows how long he remained locked in his stance, but the greenskeeper drove up, moved the hole to the other side of the green, and left Twaxby still poised. Of course, there is another way of making the hole move, but very few players carry flasks anymore.

Ulysses Baxter Accomplishes Goal

Just when things were looking particularly grim—a nationwide rail strike threatened, 24 million bushels of the taxpayers' grain lost, violence on the domestic front, new troubles in Syria and Viet Nam and a worrisome outflow of U. S. gold reserves — Ulysses Baxter came through. He nosed a peanut all the way up Pike's Peak, accompanied by a rock and roll music combo.

Some may feel Ulysses' energy was misspent, that there are more important challenges confronting the nation than rolling a peanut up a mountain. But that misses the point. Sometimes when the world's problems seem overpowering, a man seeks reassurance by tackling a smaller, more possible feat.

Some men go fishing, others collect stamps or watch birds and now and then a man goes over Niagara Falls in a barrel or walks across the country. Younger men swallow goldfish. pack telephone booths or paint class numerals on million-year-old rocks along the roadside.

In the end all seem to feel better for this diversion and return refreshed to the larger battles of existence. Ulysses, rolling the peanut up Pikes Peak, accomplished his goal. What others may think of that goal is not important.

He is the first man to roll a peanut up there, and that he will always be, come what may in Syria or in Congress.

These Days

Romney Improves The Day

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The fifty-fifth annual Governors Conference, which brought an unusual midsummer crush to some of Miami Beach's better hotels, tried its best to get down to the sober business of considering administrative topics that might be of equal interest to state executives in Vermont and Mississippi. It was obvious all along, however, that the chief issue agitating the participants was next year's Presidential election. The sad thing about the whole affair resided in its disclosure that it is practically impossble for a professional politician who has been bitten by the Presidential bug to distinguish between a hatchet and a boomerang.

Wielding a well-honed blade, Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York succeeded in nicking the hides of practically every Democratic governor who was present. The Rockefeller effort to force the conference to make a unified statement on such matters as a public accommodation law for negroes put the Democrats, who included segregationists Wallace and Barnett, very much on the spot. Fourteen Republican governors were happy to accept the discomfiture of the Democrats in this matter. But, perversely, it did Rockefeller no good with most of the Republicans who were present. So, as far as the Rockefeller hatchet was concerned, it turned into a boomerang as it affected the New York Governor's own cause. The boomerang also hit Oregon's Governor Hatfield, who associated himself with Rocky's efforts.

While Rockefeller was busy kicking the Democratic governors without adding to his own popularity among Republicans, Governor George Romney of Michigan looked like the cat who had just eaten the canary. Though he continued to disclaim any Presidential aspirations, Romney used the conference to make a high-level case for himself as a constructive statesman. He deplored the fact that the civil rights issue was being used to divert the governors from considering such things as state sovereignty in welfare matters. At the same time he observed that Michigan, acting as a humane state, had had a public accommodation law requiring restaurants and hotels to serve negroes as well as whites ever since 1888, when Grover Cleveland was still in his first Presidential term. Finally, Romney came up with a suggestion that "accentuated the positive" in the vexing business of trying to improve the international balance of payments situation that has been running against the United States.

The Kennedy approach to the problem of the gold drain, as Romney has observed it, is punitive. To cut down on the outflow of American dollars, Kennedy has cracked down on the amount of purchases that tourists are permitted to bring in without paying a duty. He has also proposed penalizing Americans who would like to buy such international stocks as Royal Dutch Shell or Volkswagen or Imperial Chemicals.

Such measures may serve to lessen the pressure on U.S. gold stocks, but they also stand to decrease the total amount of business done in the western world. Thus they give aid and comfort to the Communists.

Romney's proposed way of limiting the gold drain would be to give special advantages to U.S. companies that sell abroad. But he did not suggest anything as controversial as a straight export subsidy. His idea would be to let our big manufacturing companies engage in a species of individual, tariff-free barter agreements with foreign producers. Picking Michigan automobile companies as his example, he outlined a hypothetical situation as it might affect trade with Canada. To the extent that an American automobile manufacturer might use Canadian-made aluminum parts in his cars, that much aluminum might be allowed to come into the U.S. from Canada without the payment of a tariff.

A similar concession might be made on African copper used in the manufacture of American automobiles. Conversely, the U.S. would be expected to try for an equivalent reduction of penalties on the export of Michigan cars to Canada or South Africa.

The Romney proposal would serve to maximize the amount of business done throughout the free world. But it would do this without adding to the pressure on the U.S. gold reserve.

In offering his idea to the assembled governors while Rockefeller and Hatfield were busy confusing hatchets with boomerangs, Romney clearly added to his own stature.

National Union Power Approaching End Of Rope

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy's message to Congress on the labor dispute which has threatened a nationwide railroad strike is essentially fair in every respect. It affords little comfort, however, to either the unions or the railroads because it merely postpones until a later day the final solution of the problems involved. Will both sides come to realize—as well as many unions and employers in other industries—that national union power could be approaching the end of its rope?

The huge cost and widespread injury that could result from a railroad strike are well understood throughout the country, and the American people are in the mood to go along with any solution that will spare them such a hardship. But the fact remains that nationally organized labor unions now wield such economic power that, to avert tragic strikes, the government has to step in and do more than merely mediate a dispute.

For, in this instance, Congress is asked to give the Interstate Commerce Commission full authority to prescribe a settlement. It isn't called "compulsory arbitration." Yet it means an order to both sides to take certain steps outlined by a government agency.

America's economic mechanism has grown so complex that, under the commerce clause of the Constitution, the federal government has been assuming that it has the legal right to regulate not only the transportation industry, but also the wage conditions and working arrangements in virtually all industries, whether or not they are public utilities.

From a legal and constitutional viewpoint, there is no doubt that Congress possesses the power to write laws to control the national economy by stipulating the wages and hours and working conditions that shall prevail in most industries. But it had been hoped that, under a free-enterprise system, "collective bargaining" — namely, voluntary agreements — would be the method used to set wages. Despite all the disclaimers that collective bargaining is still to be maintained, the fact remains that, in this instance at least, collective bargaining now has been brushed aside and government action through special laws has become necessary.

Labor - union leaders never dreamed that any such situation would come to pass. They always assumed that, by strikes in local areas and "collective bargaining," they could achieve their ends without such intervention of government. Now the picture has changed because, as the President outlined his message, the damage of a railroad strike would be incredibly great and irreparable.

The Interstate Commerce Commission heretofore has exercised its powers in the rail industry primarily in regulating rates for freight and passengers, but in recent years has also been authorized to protect the job security of employes when there are mergers. From this, it now is being inferred by President Kennedy ployes from bearing the full cost that the commission has authority to deal with the impact of the new work rules which the railroads wish to apply because of automation and other developments which have cut down the need for as many employes as before. The president says in his message to Congress:

"There is no reason why these principles and procedures, if they are applicable to the employment security problems raised by railroad mergers and mass transit modernization, are not equally applicable to the employment security problems raised by railroad modernization and mechanization.

"An expert body should pass on these proposed rule changes in the light of public service and safety; and it should also make provision to prevent the emof technical or economic progress, so long as priority is given to agreements privately reached by the parties themselves."

The Interstate Commerce Commission is to be given two years in which to work out an agreement. It will listen to the proposals of both sides in the dispute and take into account any agreements they might reach in the interim. To this extent, collective bargaining, theoretically at least, is being maintained.

As far as the cost of the transition is concerned, the President says that "the nation as a whole, which shares in the benefits, would also bear part of the burden imposed by advancing railroad technology." The President adds:

"The government has some obligation to assist those adversely affected by governmental decisions which are required in the national interest; and there is little logic in protecting the economy by methods which also lead to increased unemployment and more distressed areas. The unfairness of placing the entire burden of readjustment costs upon either the carriers of the workers is an additional reason why legislation is particularly appropriate in this case."

Mr. Kennedy is convinced that there will be problems of this nature coming up in other industries and that the principle of government intervention and assistance should be recognized as necessary. So despite all the talk about "compulsory arbitration" and other devices that have been used in the past, it is plain that a new factor has entered the scene — namely, governmental intervention and governmental designation of the rules that must be followed in settling labor disputes.

Disappointment will be felt by labor unions generally which had believed that they could exercise national power on a private basis without being subject to governmental discipline. The enormity of the problem, however, and the helplessness of the labor unions themselves in dealing with the rise of unemployment due to automation have brought a change that nobody really wants but that has become invitable.

GOLDWATER RUNAWAY — Some Republican Party leaders around the country are taking steps to keep Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona conservative, from running away with the GOP 1964 presidential nomination.

Some of this movement stems from a philosophical opposition to Goldwater's principles, but a lot of it is a simple professional desire not to see the party commit itself to something it may regret later.

The movement to check Goldwater takes the form of holding state delegations by pledging them to "favorite son" candidates. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and a number of others are certain to enter the convention next year with their delegates firmly tied to their own chosen leaders until they are released.

In this way, Goldwater advocates will not be able to roll up a majority of delegates pledged to vote for him even before the convention meets. The idea at this stage is not necessarily to "stop" Goldwater, but to keep him from getting too far ahead of other possible candidates so that the convention can work its will under political conditions that will exist a year from now.

Many Republicans seriously doubt that Goldwater would be the best possible GOP candidate to run against President John F. Kennedy next year. They want to make sure that their party's candidate will make the best possible vote-getter.

Many of the delegates who will be tied to favorite sons of their states probably stand ready to vote for Goldwater when they are released. However, the favorite sons themselves hold potentially vast power to dictate who the GOP candidate will be.

If these leaders can get together on a single candidate, they could throw their combined states' delegates to him, creating a stampede on the convention floor. The problem for them is to settle on a single acceptable candidate, no easy task when this person most likely will be one of the favorite sons himself.

Facial Paralysis And Crocodile Tears

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The crocodile while eating, sheds tears by the cupful. We don't know whether he is weeping about devouring his victim or because this is just a peculiarity of the beast. At any rate, man sheds crocodile tears occasionally and the term is well chosen because the eyes water profusely at every meal.

This bizarre phenomenon follows facial paralysis of the Bell's palsy type, head injury, brain tumor, or shingles. Crocodile tears appear several months after the paralysis comes on. This complication is not a common aftermath of these lesions. Tearing is uncontrolable and leads to considerable embarrassment when eating in restaurants.

An English surgeon found that crocodile tears seldom occurred without antecedent facial paralysis. He also learned that certain nerves degenerated and, in time, new sprouts developed that connected the tear stimulators with the salivary pathways. Thinking about or chewing food stimulated the flow of saliva and tears.

The physician conducted other experiments and discovered that severing a certain nerve near the ear gave immediate and complete relief from crying.

One of his patients, a 40-year-old woman, had sustained severe Bell's palsy eight years previously. There was marked lacrimation for more than six years, even though she had recovered from the facial paralysis. Tears would well up in the lower lid on the affected side within a minute or two after starting to eat. Cutting the nerve brought immediate relief.

Another patient, an executive of 50, had suffered from Bell's palsy three years previously, from which he recovered slowly and incompletely. Eight months after the disease came on, he started crocodile-tearing when eating. This disturbed him greatly, especially when lunching with business associates. After resection of the involved nerve, he could eat comfortable and without this annoying gustatory lacrimation.

TOMORROW: Sudden attacks of sleep.

It will make her feel better, and you worse.

Like most other jaded golfers, the author realizes that there is no such thing as a basic grip, or basic swing. You just haul off and belt the ball. Brooks uses what he calls his Iron-Clad Tension swing, which is nothing more than sheer hatred backed by muscles. This will get you somewhere, but not, of course, on the course. The great artist, Burris Jenkins, tried it once and ran out of golf balls on the fourth green. The rest of the way, he hit a badminton bird.

On the other hand, I must subscribe to Dr. Brooks' analysis when he says that a man, standing up to a golf ball armed only with a club, undergoes shortness of breath, tightness in the chest, a curling of the toes, back ache, clenched teeth, locked knees, muscle spasm, paralysis and neurocirculatory aesthesia. In other words, he's ready to hit.

Still, even this preparatory work can be carried too far. Some take additional time to analyze their fears, which are: Graviphobia, a fear of falling down; Phobiphobia, a fear of having too many fears; Futophobia, fear of missing the ball completely; Rootophobia, fear of hitting too far under the ball; Chokophobia, fear of the esophagus closing tight. The last fear only proves that the golfer is paying attention and has correctly assessed the crisis at hand.

"As a final check," Brooks says, "try to think of a beautiful blonde in sweater and shorts. If you can't possibly imagine what one looks like, you are ready. You are in the Hypnotic Brain Lock." So far as gripping the club is concerned, mine is best described as a man trying to strangle a clam with two hands. Brooks says his is like a man dangling over a cliff hanging onto a three-quarter inch rope.

It doesn't matter really. I can kick a ball further than I can hit one. The only thing that the golfer must remember at all times is that the hole never moves. The idea is to get the ball to the spot where the hole is waiting. Brooks says that the hole moved on only one occasion in the history of golf.

Twenty Minute Twaxby was on the green, poised for putting. No one knows how long he remained locked in his stance, but the greenskeeper drove up, moved the hole to the other side of the green, and left Twaxby still poised. Of course, there is another way of making the hole move, but very few players carry flasks anymore.

What's so funny about golf?

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has a business friend who is a grand person of excellent character. Mr. F. C. (Fine Citizen) has contributed a great deal to our community and he is admired and respected by all who know him.

Mr. F. C. has a fault which is widely discussed behind his back but nobody wants to come right out and tell him. He has a handshake like a dead fish.

I feel it is sheer gutlessness on the part of people who call themselves "friends" to keep quiet about this. Isn't it a shame for Mr. F. C. to go through life with this terrible fault when it could be so easily remedied?

I've urged my husband to do this man a favor and tell him. My husband says he has no desire to make anybody over, nor does he want to jeopardize his friendship by risking offending the man. What do you say?

—TO TELL OR NOT TO TELL?

DEAR TO TELL: People are not born with a firm handshake or with a limp one. It's something they learn.

Apparently Mr. F. C. has been handing out dead fish for years because no one ever told him that a limp handshake suggests a lack of interest and enthusiasm. Why don't you send him this column—anonymously?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a middle-aged woman who has been going with a respectable widower for almost four years. Theodore is 15 years older than I am, but doesn't look his age. He enjoys art galleries, picnics, concerts and flower shows as I do.

I am not trying to marry him so he need have no fears along that line. He is a pleasant, intelligent, attractive person and I'm sure he enjoys my companionship as I do his.

Something happened last week which upset me terribly. Theodore invited me to his home to see his rock-garden. When we pulled into his driveway we found his son and daughter-in-law's car parked there. Without saying a word Theodore backed right out of the driveway and drove me straight home. He offered no explanation but said, "I'll phone you later in the week." What do you make of his strange behavior?

—INSULTED AND PUZZLED

DEAR I and P.: Obviously, Theodore did not want his children to see him bringing a woman to his home. Such behavior, of course, demonstrates an enormous lack of maturity.

If you are content to be his companion continue to see him. But don't harbor any secret hopes that this relationship will ever go beyond that stage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter is 16 years of age. She is a good-looking girl with a beautiful, clear, peaches-and-cream complexion. Yet she insists on covering her face with a pancake foundation which gives her an artificial, masked look. She makes up only her face and forgets about her neck, so of course, her neck is about five shades lighter.

Several of her girl friends do this, also. One friend has an unfortunate complexion and the make-up does cover some of the blemishes. But why would young girls with lovely complexions want to cover them with make-up? Please explain.

—ONLY HER MOTHER

DEAR ONLY: Girls who do this imagine the gunk makes them look glamorous. Someone ought to tell them that the wholesome, scrubbed look is in and the pasty-faced, consumptive look is out.

Confidential to JUST NOSEY: Your informed source is misinformed. I don't wear a wig. I have never worn a wig. I have no plans to buy a wig.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

Put Tension To Work For You

What should you do when you're wound up as tight as a watch's mainspring? Do just as the watch does — GO! That's the time to start ticking, to focus your pent-up feelings on some project that will divert your attention away from the aggravation and stress of the moment.

Instead of letting tension work on you, try to understand how you can put it to work for you. Tension is really just a mass of accumulated energy, waiting to be used, wanting to be used. For any number of reasons, this inner force, meant for accomplishment, can't be siphoned off evenly and naturally, at the right times, in the right places, for the right reasons.

So, you might call too much tension a case of "misdirected energy" when it is wasted in non-productive, even self-destructive, ways . . . drained off in repeated, prolonged periods of depression, spent foolishly in anxiety and frustration or exploded away during emotional outbursts that are all out of proportion to the circumstances triggering them.

While you must never underestimate your capacity to withstand stress, be wise enough to take care that you never test the limit of your endurance to the point of strain. Like the mainspring of a watch that is wound too tight, the human mechanism can also snap.

Know yourself well enough to be wary of the warning signals that indicate tension is mounting. And, before you get wound up, stop what you're doing! Immediately. It's important to break the chain of activity that is promoting the extra stress. The briefest of breaks will bring instant relief.

After that, a complete change of activiity is the healthiest, most effective means for inducting the relaxation you need.

Some women boast that they do their best work on their worst housekeeping chores at times like these. "I don't worry any more about whether it's the right time of day or night . . . or year! "says one of them, "I just tear apart the closets anyway!"

That's how she gets rid of mounting tension . . . and gets something accomplished at the same time.

Your answer might be an unscheduled drive, shopping trip or game of golf, if you're able to manage a change of scene as well as activity. If you can't get away, just a telephone visit with a friend or an hour devoted to long-postponed, luxury-style grooming may do the trick.

Maryland's Outstanding Scientist To Be Chosen

Nominations are now being accepted by the Maryland Academy of Sciences for its fifth annual award to Maryland's Outstanding Young Scientist of the Year.

The award of a $500 check and a bronze plaque will be presented to a scientist living and working in Maryland who has not reached the age of 35 by September 30, 1963, according to Nigel O'C. Wolff, Academy director.

The work on which the nomination is based must have been "performed, culminated or substantially extended within the period from January 1, 1962, to August 31, 1963," Mr. Wolff said.

The word "scientist" as used in this award is interpreted as covering persons engaged in all disciplines generally recognized as scientific, including mathematics and engineering and the teaching of such disciplines.

Nomination forms and explanatory materials have already been distributed to professional members of the Academy and to colleges, universities, school systems, science-oriented industries and research organizations. Mr. Wolff pointed out, however, that anyone may place a name in nomination. Forms may be obtained at the Academy offices, 400 Cathedral Street, Baltimore.

Earlier recipients of the award included, in 1959, Dr. William H. Guier, Applied Physics Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University; 1960, Dr. Robert W. Bass, Aeronca Astromechanics Institute; 1961, Dr. Andre T. Jagendorf, Biology Department, Johns Hopkins University, and 1962, Dr. Rudolf E. Kalman, RIAS.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

When a certain objective is greatly to be desired, nearly any risk is justified in order to obtain one's goal. East's willingness to play it safe in today's hand permitted his opponent to romp home with his game contract in hearts.

West opened the jack of spades, the ace was played from dummy, and East dropped the five. A spade was returned and East was in with the queen. He shifted to a diamond in the hope of finding West with the ace, for he urgently desired a club play thru North's king.

South put up the diamond ace from his hand and led a small heart. When West followed with the seven, dummy's nine was inserted. One trump trick must be lost in any event, and declarer's object was to keep West out of the lead. East was in again, and he had little recourse but to return another diamond. South held the trick with the queen, and another heart lead located West's king and cleared up the trump situation without further casualty.

A spade was trumped in the closed hand felling the remaining honors and establishing the dummy's two long cards in the suit. A diamond was led to the king and South's losing clubs were discarded on the spades as the declarer chalked up an overtrick.

East lost the battle for his side on the very first trick. Inasmuch as a club lead from his partner at some stage appears to be an essential part of the defensive campaign, East should exert every effort to get West in. Since the opening lead of the jack of spades has every appearance of being the top of a sequence, it is suggested that East drop his queen under the dummy's five. Now when declarer returns a spade at trick two, East can play the five which permits his partner to win the trick. The club shift now becomes inescapable.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shelley Berman, the outspoken comic, is moving from New York to Hollywood because movieland "is the only section of the country in terms of entertainment creativity."

Such words coming from a New York performer are considered heresy in the East, where many persons consider Hollywood a place where the idiots come for the finals.

"I'm in the process of instructing my office not to consider any scripts that emanate or originate with Broadway people," said Shelley. "It's not a feeling of rejection. I think my motives are objective. I've had my chances. This isn't sour grapes.

"There are a lot of right things about New York but not sufficient. I haven't got a chip on my shoulder. I see no future in a dream I've entertained for years. The dream was to be recognized as an actor on Broadway and then go into writing and directing.

"I've got to find some other mountain to dig my gold from. Broadway isn't my hill."

Shelley expects criticism for his Hollywood plans. He admits some New Yorkers will call him a traitor and accuse him of "selling out."

"As far as I'm concerned, it's buying into a fine self-respecting industry that you can be proud of; while in New York theater they call it art and create no business.

"At least you're facing certain facts. You call it by its rightful name, an industry. And from industry can come great works of art. The theater is an industry too but it's a failing industry."

Berman, who said Hollywood is undergoing a "renaissance," has a schedule which includes an appearance on Judy Garland's television show, and nightclub appearances in Las Vegas, Nev., New Zealand and Australia.

He aspires to more dramatic acting on television out here. Shelley is also scheduled for his first movie next year in which he'll play the widower father of two sons.

Like some other actors, Shelley hopes to some day direct movies and television shows.

Concluding his conversation, Shelley said, "I haven't burned down all my bridges" in the event he decides to work again on Broadway.

Maybe he hasn't. But those bridges left standing will be pretty hard to find.

Rainfall Badly Needed By Allegany County Farmers

Despite last Saturday's rainfall, farmers in Allegany County and surrounding areas are still in great need of additional rainfall, according to Joseph E. Steger, county farm agent.

The rainfall was also somewhat scattered but did do some good. Pastures and various crops are suffering from lack of rain and lawns and gardens of homeowners are scorched.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture report for Maryland and Delaware as of Tuesday states that the current soil moisture deficits are more the result of the early spring drought and high temperatures last week than a shortage of rainfall during June and first half of July.

Low subsoil reserves have partly offset the benefits of rainfall since June 1, which is some areas of Maryland, were more than double the precipitation for the same period last year.

In respect to pastures the poor condition stems partly from last year's extreme summer drought.

The report states that in the Hancock fruit belt the picking of Lodi and Transparent apples 'peaked' around July 8 to 10. Williams Reds are moving from this area this week and will peak the end of this month or early August.

The report states that decreases in planted acreage in Maryland and Delaware from last year were in green lima beans, off 21 per cent; tomatoes, off 18 per cent; sweet corn, off 18 per cent and snap beans, off seven per cent. Increases were noted in peas, up eight per cent; asparagus, up five per cent; and cucumbers for pickles, up four per cent.

Railroad Detour To Remain In Use

Because of tunnel work which is underway on the B&O Railroad between Clarksburg and Parkersburg on the main line trains running between Baltimore and Washington and Cincinnati and St. Louis will use a detour through next October.

During this period, the eastbound 'George Washington' on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad will continue to receive through cars from the B&O's 'National Limited' at Cincinnati for B&O patrons desiring an early morning arrival in Washington.

More Fire Fighters

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky is taking a page from California by using carefully screened reformatory inmates for forest fire control in the eastern mountain area.

Warden David Davis of LaGrange Reformatory says the project is helping rehabilitate project is helping rehabilitation and giving the state extra manpower to combat fires.

California has 22 such forestry camps for prisoners.

Alexander the Great was born in Macedonia, in Europe; he died at Babylon, in Asia, and he was buried at Alexandria, in Africa.

Way Out

BALTIMORE (AP) — Panthers, Eagles and other mundane names for Boy Scout patrols may be disappearing.

At one recent camp, the patrol which set up the most original campsite was called the "Beat Beatnik Patrol."

The official patrol call was "cool man." The pennant insignia was a beret, dark eyeglasses and a beard.

Area AAUW Women Named State Officers

Group To Attend Workshop Saturday

FROSTBURG — Two Frostburg women, members of the Frostburg-George's Creek Branch, American Association of University Women, have recently been appointed to state offices in that organization, according to Dr. Alice Manicur, branch president. Miss Gertrude Williams will become chairman for higher education and Mrs. Francis Peretti will be finance chairman for 1963-64.

The announcement was made at a recent program planning meeting held at Dr. Manicur's home. At the same meeting Mrs. Joseph Kruson and Dr. Manicur reported on meetings they attended at the national AAUW convention held last month in Denver.

Basic structural changes in the organization of AAUW voted upon at that time, will be a major topic considered at a workshop conducted by the Maryland State Division at Hood College, Saturday. Attending this workshop from the Frostburg-George's Creek Branch will be Mrs. Joseph Martirano, Miss Annetta Gerson, Miss Gertrude Williams, Mrs. Harold Cordts, Mrs. Reford Aldridge, Mrs. Joseph Kruson, Mrs. Ernest Ogden, Dr. Manicur and Miss Jane Grindel.

This workshop will be especially concerned with program planning for the new year, since AAUW branches are entering a transition period in which study groups as they now function may be supplanted by newly structured groups. New groups will study in depth, for a two-year period, any or all of four topics. These topics are: "Occident and Orient;" "Bridging the Gap Between Science and the Layman;" "Expectations for Education;" and "The American Family in a Changing World."

The purpose of this workshop is to inform as many AAUW members as possible on the practical implimentation of the new structure and program. The local branch program will be affected during this coming year, to some degree, by the new national proposals.

The Hood College workshop will also include a special session for branch presidents, and meetings on practical reporting and creative expression.

McClung was a guest speaker at Wednesday night's program for the Kiwanis Club of Keyser for whom a group of the campers also presented several talent acts.

Kiwanis Told Of 4-H Program, Development

KEYSER — Adhering to tradition, members of the Kiwanis Club of Keyser met with the 205 boys and girls and 20 adult leaders enrolled at the annual Mineral County 4-H Camp at Camp Minco this week.

County Agent Emery L. Prunty, who was introduced by Joseph Wimer, presented one of the camp directors, Juhling McClung, of Mason County, who explained to the Kiwanians the significance of 4-H work in West Virginia, citing the organization as "a beacon of the future," and reminding the adults that the young people at camp this week "will be your leaders of tomorrow."

McClung spoke of the increasing growth of 4-H programs within the state and nation, pointing out that from a rural circle the movement has progressed to the suburban and more recently the urban areas, carrying out the four-fold purpose in the development of the head, heart, hand and health.

He said that especially noteworthy in the fulfillment of the Head-H is the large career guidance and counseling service which has been inaugurated while organizations on all levels continue promotion of the Heart-H through patriotism, love of nature, and development of spiritual programs; the Hand-H in which one must do something and do it well; and the Health-H through which the nation and state instills in the young people good health habits and programs of good hygiene.

He told the Kiwanians that summer camp is really the climax to a year of hard work. It is a planned vacation for teenagers in a good and wholesome atmosphere, and it provides wonderful experiences for those who are making the change from childhood to the challenges of adult leadership, he said.

West Virginia has been a national leader in 4-H for several years now and that while the state's population has notably decreased, membership in 4-H has grown by six per cent. McClung said that this year there are 12,000 4-H'ers attending summer camps throughout the mountain state.

Several selected acts from Tuesday night's talent show were presented, including musical numbers by John McIlwee and four girls doing a parody entitled "Won't You Come Home Disraeli," after which Dennis Pyles entertained with instrumental numbers on both the guitar and banjo. Miss Mary Lou Kenny sang "Sweet Georgia Brown" and did the Charleston. A quartet comprised of McIlwee, Tom Amtower, Janice Tasker, and Carolyn Thrush sang several humorous selections.

4-H Camp Leaders

Three of the state leaders at the annual Mineral County 4-H Camp which closes tonight at Camp Minco, near Headsville, are Linda Burgoyne, Pendleton County; Juhling McClung, Mason County; and Ada Cox, Nicholas County. McClung was a guest speaker at Wednesday night's program for the Kiwanis Club of Keyser for whom a group of the campers also presented several talent acts.

Kiwanis Told Of 4-H Program, Development

KEYSER — Adhering to tradition, members of the Kiwanis Club of Keyser met with the 205 boys and girls and 20 adult leaders enrolled at the annual Mineral County 4-H Camp at Camp Minco this week.

County Agent Emery L. Prunty, who was introduced by Joseph Wimer, presented one of the camp directors, Juhling McClung, of Mason County, who explained to the Kiwanians the significance of 4-H work in West Virginia, citing the organization as "a beacon of the future," and reminding the adults that the young people at camp this week "will be your leaders of tomorrow."

McClung spoke of the increasing growth of 4-H programs within the state and nation, pointing out that from a rural circle the movement has progressed to the suburban and more recently the urban areas, carrying out the four-fold purpose in the development of the head, heart, hand and health.

He said that especially noteworthy in the fulfillment of the Head-H is the large career guidance and counseling service which has been inaugurated while organizations on all levels continue promotion of the Heart-H through patriotism, love of nature, and development of spiritual programs; the Hand-H in which one must do something and do it well; and the Health-H through which the nation and state instills in the young people good health habits and programs of good hygiene.

He told the Kiwanians that summer camp is really the climax to a year of hard work. It is a planned vacation for teenagers in a good and wholesome atmosphere, and it provides wonderful experiences for those who are making the change from childhood to the challenges of adult leadership, he said.

West Virginia has been a national leader in 4-H for several years now and that while the state's population has notably decreased, membership in 4-H has grown by six per cent. McClung said that this year there are 12,000 4-H'ers attending summer camps throughout the mountain state.

Several selected acts from Tuesday night's talent show were presented, including musical numbers by John McIlwee and four girls doing a parody entitled "Won't You Come Home Disraeli," after which Dennis Pyles entertained with instrumental numbers on both the guitar and banjo. Miss Mary Lou Kenny sang "Sweet Georgia Brown" and did the Charleston. A quartet comprised of McIlwee, Tom Amtower, Janice Tasker, and Carolyn Thrush sang several humorous selections.

Campers then held vesper services and members of the Kiwanis Club conducted their board meeting. Guests also included Conservation Officer Keith Taylor and Ralph Wimer.

McBride Halts Yankees 6-Game Win Streak, 5-0

Los Angeles Hurler Fires Three-Hitter, Downing Is Loser

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken McBride, the Los Angeles Angels' Yankee-killer, stopped the league-leaders' winning streak at six Thursday by hurling a masterful, three hit, 5-0 victory over the New Yorkers.

Encouraged by his teammates' three-run outburst against fireballer Al Downing in the first inning, the 27-year-old right-hander cooled off the red-hot Yanks with three singles spread over as many innings.

After being rapped for a lead-off single by Tony Kubek in the first inning, the 6-foot-1, 195-pound Angel ace retired 15 straight batters before Hector Lopze got a single off Billy Moran's glove to start the sixth inning. Kubek was rubbed out on a double play. Tom Tresh singled to right with one out in the seventh inning and died there.

McBride threw only 96 pitches.

The nifty performance gave McBride a 3-1 edge over the Yanks for the year and a 6-3 career bulge. His over-all record third year now is 12-7.

Downing, now 6-2, was rapped for three runs on two walks and two hits, in the first inning before settling down.

Kirkland's Homer Beats Twins, 3-2

Three-Run Poke Hit In Eighth

CLEVELAND (AP) — Willie Kirkland's three-run homer in the eighth inning gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Thursday.

Jim Perry had tamed his former Cleveland teammates on six hits and appeared to be headed for a shutout when he was removed after walking the first man to face him in the eighth.

Relief pitcher Billy Dailey gave up a single to the next man, Dave Brown, and Kirkland blasted his home run over the right field fence, scoring Tito Francona and Brown.

Old Exports Snap Germans' Streak

Gene Hess outdueled Max Cline in an airtight 1-0 struggle yesterday as the Old Exports snapped the Old German's seven-game winning streak in the Rec Softball League at Naval Reserve Field.

Hess, who had lost three shutouts to the Old Germans while beating them once 6-2, allowed only four hits and fired the third past eight batters. He got out of a one - out, bases - loaded jam in the sixth by inducing Eddie Barley and Mike Lease to pop up.

The Exports picked up the only run of the battle in the bottom of the sixth when Dick Peck singled and scored on Jamie Taylor's double. Gordie Moore and Walter Younger also hit two baggers for the Old Exports who upped their record to 7-5.

The Old Germans, who dropped to 10-4 but maintained their hold on first place, had four singles shared by Cline, Lease, Delton Barbe and Al Knotts.

Burdette Beats Spahn In Duel Of Ex-Roomies

Cards Win, 3-1, At Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP)—St. Louis right-hander Lew Burdette edged Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn in a pitching duel between long-time roommates Thursday as the Cardinals defeated the Braves 3-1.

The 36-year-old Burdette, who won 179 games for the Braves before he was traded to St. Louis last June 15, was in top form against his former mates. He allowed only five hits, struck out two and didn't walk a batter.

The 42-year-old Spahn, sidelined since July 7 because of a sore elbow, was nicked for eight hits and three runs, including one unearned, before retiring for a pinch hitter in the eighth. He struck out one and didn't issue a walk.

A crowd of 22,331, including 15,019 paid, turned out for the Burdette-Spahn meeting. The two veterans were close friends and roommates on the road during most of Burdette's 11 seasons with the Braves. Until the last few years, they were the left-right punch of the Milwaukee staff.

Burdette, defeated by the Braves earlier this month, was nicked for a run on a double by Denny Menke and a single by Hank Aaron in the first inning, but was in command the rest of the way.

Mets Lose 19th Straight On Road To Giants, 8-6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays crashed a three-run homer, a double and single Thursday as the San Francisco Giants bombed New York 8-6 for the Mets' 19th straight road game loss — equaling a modern major league record.

The Philadelphia Athletics of 1916 also lost 19 in a row away from home and before that, in 1890, Pittsburgh lost 22.

Mays smashed his 22nd homer of the season in the fifth inning, sending the Giants into a 7-3 lead.

Mays' double proved one of baseball's oddities and led to the final tally. He hit a high fly toward left field. As shortstop Larry Burright ran out, the wind blew the ball back in and it fell on infield dirt for a two-base hit. Mays then scored on Ed Bailey's single.

Reds Edge Cubs, 3-2

Edwards' Sacrifice Wins Game In Ninth

CHICAGO (AP)—Catcher John Edwards' ninth-inning sacrifice fly scored pinch runner Marty Keough with the winning run as the Cincinnati Reds took a 3-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs Thursday.

Al Worthington, the Reds' last of three pitchers in the ninth, struck out Ernie Banks to end the game with the bases full of Cubs—the result of three singles

Successive singles by Gordy Coleman and Frank Robinson with one out in the last inning set the stage for Cincinnati's winning spurt to break a 2-2 tie. Keough ran for Coleman, and scored after Edwards leveled Lindy McDaniel for the tide-turning fly.

McBride Halts Yankees 6-Game Win Streak, 5-0

Los Angeles Hurler Fires Three-Hitter, Downing Is Loser

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken McBride, the Los Angeles Angels' Yankee-killer, stopped the league-leaders' winning streak at six Thursday by hurling a masterful, three hit, 5-0 victory over the New Yorkers.

Encouraged by his teammates' three-run outburst against fireballer Al Downing in the first inning, the 27-year-old right-hander cooled off the red-hot Yanks with three singles spread over as many innings.

After being rapped for a lead-off single by Tony Kubek in the first inning, the 6-foot-1, 195-pound Angel ace retired 15 straight batters before Hector Lopze got a single off Billy Moran's glove to start the sixth inning. Kubek was rubbed out on a double play. Tom Tresh singled to right with one out in the seventh inning and died there.

McBride threw only 96 pitches.

The nifty performance gave McBride a 3-1 edge over the Yanks for the year and a 6-3 career bulge. His over-all record third year now is 12-7.

Downing, now 6-2, was rapped for three runs on two walks and two hits, in the first inning before settling down.

Kirkland's Homer Beats Twins, 3-2

Three-Run Poke Hit In Eighth

CLEVELAND (AP) — Willie Kirkland's three-run homer in the eighth inning gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Thursday.

Jim Perry had tamed his former Cleveland teammates on six hits and appeared to be headed for a shutout when he was removed after walking the first man to face him in the eighth.

Relief pitcher Billy Dailey gave up a single to the next man, Dave Brown, and Kirkland blasted his home run over the right field fence, scoring Tito Francona and Brown.

Old Exports Snap Germans' Streak

Gene Hess outdueled Max Cline in an airtight 1-0 struggle yesterday as the Old Exports snapped the Old German's seven-game winning streak in the Rec Softball League at Naval Reserve Field.

Hess, who had lost three shutouts to the Old Germans while beating them once 6-2, allowed only four hits and fired the third past eight batters. He got out of a one - out, bases - loaded jam in the sixth by inducing Eddie Barley and Mike Lease to pop up.

The Exports picked up the only run of the battle in the bottom of the sixth when Dick Peck singled and scored on Jamie Taylor's double. Gordie Moore and Walter Younger also hit two baggers for the Old Exports who upped their record to 7-5.

The Old Germans, who dropped to 10-4 but maintained their hold on first place, had four singles shared by Cline, Lease, Delton Barbe and Al Knotts.

Burdette Beats Spahn In Duel Of Ex-Roomies

Cards Win, 3-1, At Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP)—St. Louis right-hander Lew Burdette edged Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn in a pitching duel between long-time roommates Thursday as the Cardinals defeated the Braves 3-1.

The 36-year-old Burdette, who won 179 games for the Braves before he was traded to St. Louis last June 15, was in top form against his former mates. He allowed only five hits, struck out two and didn't walk a batter.

The 42-year-old Spahn, sidelined since July 7 because of a sore elbow, was nicked for eight hits and three runs, including one unearned, before retiring for a pinch hitter in the eighth. He struck out one and didn't issue a walk.

A crowd of 22,331, including 15,019 paid, turned out for the Burdette-Spahn meeting. The two veterans were close friends and roommates on the road during most of Burdette's 11 seasons with the Braves. Until the last few years, they were the left-right punch of the Milwaukee staff.

Burdette, defeated by the Braves earlier this month, was nicked for a run on a double by Denny Menke and a single by Hank Aaron in the first inning, but was in command the rest of the way.

Mets Lose 19th Straight On Road To Giants, 8-6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays crashed a three-run homer, a double and single Thursday as the San Francisco Giants bombed New York 8-6 for the Mets' 19th straight road game loss — equaling a modern major league record.

The Philadelphia Athletics of 1916 also lost 19 in a row away from home and before that, in 1890, Pittsburgh lost 22.

Mays smashed his 22nd homer of the season in the fifth inning, sending the Giants into a 7-3 lead.

Mays' double proved one of baseball's oddities and led to the final tally. He hit a high fly toward left field. As shortstop Larry Burright ran out, the wind blew the ball back in and it fell on infield dirt for a two-base hit. Mays then scored on Ed Bailey's single.

Reds Edge Cubs, 3-2

Edwards' Sacrifice Wins Game In Ninth

CHICAGO (AP)—Catcher John Edwards' ninth-inning sacrifice fly scored pinch runner Marty Keough with the winning run as the Cincinnati Reds took a 3-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs Thursday.

Al Worthington, the Reds' last of three pitchers in the ninth, struck out Ernie Banks to end the game with the bases full of Cubs—the result of three singles

Successive singles by Gordy Coleman and Frank Robinson with one out in the last inning set the stage for Cincinnati's winning spurt to break a 2-2 tie. Keough ran for Coleman, and scored after Edwards leveled Lindy McDaniel for the tide-turning fly.

Halfway Knocks Frostburg Out Of Tourney, 5-0

Frostburg's All - Stars were knocked out of the Little League district tournament yesterday by Halfway, of Washington county, which scored a 5-0 victory in the Mountain City.

Halfway had eliminated West End of Hagerstown, 1962 state champions, on Tuesday by the score of 9-5. Frostburg won its first district game, defeating Hancock on Tuesday, 9-1.

"Fuzzy" Beard went the route for Halfway in yesterday's game and limited Frostburg to four hits and struck out eight. Eddie McAteer went the distance for Frostburg, gave up four hits, whiffed six and issued three bases on balls.

Reed hit a two-run homer for Halfway in the fifth inning after the visitors had taken a 3-0 lead in the fourth. McAteer had two of Frostburg's four hits. Score:

Monbouquette Drops Three-Hitter, 2-0

BOSTON (UPI) — The Kansas City Athletics stretched three hits into a 2-0 victory Thursday over the Boston Red Sox as Ed Rakow and Bill Fischer and John Waytt combined to pitch a shutout.

The A's, winning their fifth consecutive and sweeping a four-game series with Boston, put two of their singles off Boston loser Bill Monbouquette together with a fielder's choice in the second inning for one run. Kansas City, winning its ninth game in 11 starts, scored again an inning later on Bobby DelGreco's triple and Wayne Causey's squeeze bunt.

Two Children, Man Are Killed

Three Found Dead Near Home Along Old Baltimore Pike

Two teenage children and their 47-year-old stepfather were found dead last night in a hollow about 200 yards from their home along old Baltimore Pike in what State Police believe to have been a double murder and suicide.

Dead are Guy Propst, 47; Bonnie Harrison, 17, and Rickie Harrison, 15.

Authorities were still piecing together details about the shooting late last night.

Propst, who was a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employe, ordinarily picked up his wife when she got off from work at 6 p.m. each day at a local bakery. He did not show up when she finished work yesterday.

When she eventually reached home there was no one in the house and two guns, a rifle and a shotgun, were missing from the house.

The Propst home is located along the southerly side of old U.S. Route 40 just east of Miller's Garage. It is about six-and-one-half miles east of the city limits.

State Police were notified about 8:30 p.m. and immediately hurried to the scene to investigate. Also joining in the investigation were County Investigator William F. Baker and the county's deputy medical examiner, Dr. Benedict Skitarelic.

Mrs. Henrietta Propst, mother of the two children, notified State Police when she was unable to find her children or husband.

Trooper P. J. Fiorita was the first to be called to the Baltimore Pike residence, about 8:30 p.m. It was reported that a neighbor discovered the bodies about 9 p.m. to end the search.

Mrs. Propst had been married to Mr. Propst about five or six years.

Other State Police participating in the investigation are Tfc. B. J. Chabot, criminal investigator, and Tfc. J. V. Stakem. They were joined by Deputy Sheriff George Staub.

Death Scene Looked Like Battlefield

Police Give Impressions

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

"It looks like a battlefield."

This was the reaction of one of the police officers as state and county investigators arrived at the scene of a triple tragedy late last night, just off Baltimore Pike, about a quarter mile east of Rocky Gap Road, east of Cumberland.

The victims of a triple shooting were identified as Guy Propst, 47, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant worker and two of his stepchildren, Richard Lee Harrison, 15, and Bonita Louise Harrison, 17, both students at Fort Hill High School.

Sprawled In Glen

In a little wooded glen, about 150 yards beyond the Propst residence, the three bodies were sprawled, all victims of rifle bullet wounds.

The first body, that of young Harrison, known as Ricky, was lying on its side, part way up a silght hill, as if he had been running toward the other two. He had been shot, investigators said, at least once and perhaps twice with a heavy calibre rifle.

About 20 feet farther on, just in front of a small barn or large shed type building, Mr. Propst's body was lying face down. Under him was a 30-30 calibre rifle. He had been shot upward through the neck, the bullet going through the top of his head, and blowing his cap about 20 feet off to the left. The barrel of the weapon was protruding through his head from his throat just under the chin, out the top of his head. Police investigators and the medical examiner said he fell on the barrel after the shot was fired.

Around Corner

Slightly around the corner of the small barn, about 20 feet farther on, was the body of Miss Harrison. She had been wounded several times, police said maybe four or five. There were other marks and abrasions on her face and neck, which were unaccounted for in the preliminary examination.

Bonnie, as she was popularly known was wearing a white blouse, black jamaicas and tennis shoes.

She wore a wrist watch which was still running on her left wrist and an Allegany High School ring.

Ricky Harrison was wearing a pair of khaki slacks and a khaki undershirt and loafers. Their stepfather was dressed in gray work clothes, a short and slacks and work shoes.

Discovers Bodies

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Loring Helmick, a neighbor just about dark. Mrs. Helmick, known as Viola Helmick is a good friend and neighbor of Mrs. Propst.

According to Mrs. Helmick, she had been called by Mrs. Propst shortly after Mrs. Propst came home from work at the Community Bakery. Mrs. Propst said she could not find anyone at home and feared something was wrong. She told Mrs. Helmick that she had called police, an officer had stopped by in answer to her call, but they could find nothing.

A .22 calibre rifle with a freshly broken stock in the kitchen disturbed Mrs. Propst, but the police believed the gun had not been fired.

Went To Check

After the officer left, Mrs. Propst called Mrs. Helmick and Mrs. Helmick went to check. She said she had heard nothing from the family all day, but decided to look up the lane. She walked up the road toward the little barn, first saw Rickey's body and just beyond another body which she presumed was Mr. Propst. She said she did not see Bonnie, but screamed and ran back down the

Foreign Students Get Pleasant Treatment Here

Mrs. Walter E. Dyck, who was in charge of arrangements for the recent visit to Cumberland by 67 foreign students, yesterday expressed her thanks on behalf of the Cumberland Chapter of the American Field Service to all those persons and groups in the community who helped make the project a success.

Mrs. Dyck said many persons had a hand in the project to make it a successful one, especially those families who were hosts or housed one or more of the students for the weekend.

She also added that the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce helped finance the trip so the foreign students could stop in Cumberland before returning to their homes in the various foreign countries.

Two bus loads of the students arrived here July 13 and spent the weekend before moving on to Virginia. The students were on their way home after spending a year in this country and attending high school.

One of the students who became ill while here and underwent surgery, was released from Memorial Hospital Wednesday and is now on her way home.

Miss Mandana Afra, of Iran, left here Wednesday by Montgomery Air Service for Pittsburgh, where she boarded another plane for New York City. From there she will fly home to Iran.

Youths Receive Stiff Sentences In Dynamiting

Court Orders Exam For Two Inmates

Stiff sentences were imposed yesterday afternoon on five Lonaconing area youths who were tried earlier this month in Allegany County Circuit Court on charges resulting from the theft of dynamite and the dynamiting of a pumping station at Dan's Mountain State Park near Lonaconing.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey, who studied pre-sentencing investigations by James F. Lewis, state parole officer for Western Maryland, sentenced John L. Beeman, 18, and Harry William Lease, 17, each to five years in the Maryland House of Correction on charges of malicious destruction of property by use of dynamite.

He also sentenced Roy Spiker, 18, and Kenneth G. Matthews, 17, Moscow, to three years in the institution on the same charges.

John David Lease, 16, who was charged with three counts of breaking and entering at Turnbull's Mine, Callmine's Shoe and Gardner's Mine, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Institution for Males.

Judge Cobey also passed a court order directing that John David Lease and John L. Beeman be given a psychiatric examination at Patuxent Institution to determine if they are possible defective delinquents. The State's Attorney's office requested that the two youths be given the examination.

The judge pointed out yesterday that cases such as these are due to a complete lack of parental control and supervision and that the community including church groups should come to the aid of youths placed on probation.

He noted that at least two of the youths sentenced yesterday were under the supervision of the Welfare Department.

It is impossible to expect the Juvenile Court to rehabilitate youths placed on probation and the residents and groups in the community in which they live should come to their assistance and try to build them up.

In presenting the case earlier this month State's Attorney James S. Getty pointed out the seriousness of the dynamiting charges and noted that residents of the George's Creek area were "so terrorized they were afraid to leave their homes."

The state's attorney noted: "Although the dollar and cents value involved in these cases is minor, the chances for the possible loss of life were extremely great. In the cases of the dynamiting the youths would set the blasts and then leave the scene. Anyone could have entered the area and have been blown to bits."

Attorney Paul W. Barnett court-appointed counsel for the youths, gave a brief review of each defendant's educational background, noting that only one has more than a ninth grade education.

SRC To Finish First Phase Of Traffic Study

Internal Survey Is Slated Soon

State Roads Commission crews next Tuesday will complete the external station phase of a traffic survey of the City of Cumberland.

Crews will be stationed today on Route 40 east, about a fourth of a mile east of the city limits.

Monday, crews will check traffic on the Industrial Boulevard section of the Cumberland Thruway, just east of the city line, and on Tuesday will complete the last of the external point studies as they question drivers leaving Maryland by Route 28 at the Blue Bridge.

Studies were made this week on the other points of the external traffic study.

The internal survey, at 12 points within the city limits, is scheduled in the near future.

The study at the some 22 check points will duplicate and update the 1949-1950 traffic study.

Data secured by the study will be of vital interest to the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency, which is planning as its first major project the rehabilitation of the city's central area.

The SRC traffic survey party will move next Wednesday to Hancock, where they will check US 522 traffic near the West Virginia line. Thursday they will be at Williamsport and Friday at Sharpsburg.

The party is in charge of Henry F. Sacker, a member of the staff of the SRC's Traffic Bureau.

The 30-member crew stops each vehicle at the check points, asking chiefly where the driver is going, where he came from and the type of trip he is making—that is business, pleasure or work.

The points are manned for 15 hours by two shifts and estimates are made for the remaining hours.

Mathias Backs His Farm Bill In Committee

Measure Proposes Land Use Study

Rep. Charles McC. Mathias, Republican from Maryland's Sixth Congressional District, submitted testimony Wednesday before the House Agriculture Committee in support of H.R. 6545, which he describes as a farm bill with both urban and rural appeal and which he recently introduced in the House of Representatives.

A key provision of the Mathias bill provides for a land use study. "We are all aware that the nation's land is a vital resource. As agriculture needs have diminished, other needs for land have multiplied. Urbanization is claiming more than 1 million acres a year, mostly in the vicinity of our cities. Linked to urban growth many factors are pointing to an even greater demand for open land for recreation, transportation, and dams for water, power, and flood control.

"The soil survey could identify opportunities for continued profitable agriculture, and the conversion of agricultural areas to recreation, business, and other extensive uses. Recognizing the impact of urbanization and highway, and airport construction on open lands, the survey could produce standards that would allow the designation of sites appropriate for urban development that also would assure the preservation of the important natural environment."

Other provisions of the Mathias bill would:

"Permit market prices to serve as the dominant influence in guiding the use of farm resources and the movement of farm output into consumption.

"Provide for price supports at levels best fitted to specific commodities, in order to widen markets, ease production controls, and help achieve increased farm family income and government

Wooden Paving Blocks Are Found In Blue Spring

Bits of the city's history are unfolding as the city's Flood Control Maintenance crew proceeds with plans to halt the ills besetting historic Blue Spring.

The men yesterday pumped out the pool and removed truckloads of debris, including old shoes, bottles and two of the original wooden blocks which were once used to pave North Mechanic Street.

City workers said the blocks probably were washed into Blue Spring during the St. Patrick's Day flood of 1936.

Also found as the water was pumped from the pool was the end of the pipe leading from the pool to the North Mechanic interceptor sewer. It was plugged with concrete, proof that the water is not being lost in the sewer line.

City Engineer C. R. Nuzum said he has been told water from Blue Spring was once used periodically to flush out the old Mill Race conduit.

Apparent leaks were discovered in the bottom and a blanket of clay will be used in an attempt to make the pool waterproof.

During the flood control work, the E. J. Albrecht Company, as a public service, used one of its draglines to remove tons and tons of muck and debris.

City workers feel it is possible that a fissure developed after the debris was removed.

The city workers located, when the water went down, the source of water supply. Water could be seen oozing through the mud in the bottom at two points near Mechanic Street.

During the work yesterday, city crews turned over the pool's fish population to a staffer from the fishery in Oakland. Found living were two sunfish, one sucker and one carp. All of the trout which had been stocked in the pool are dead.

Volunteers Burn Barn In Practice

Owner Requested Its Destruction

Two volunteer fire companies arrived at a barn fire yesterday evening before it started and stood by while flames destroyed the structure.

The fire drill posed a "good problem" according to one fireman, who said volunteers of Bowman's Addition and Bedford Road were on the scene with six pieces of equipment.

Gilbert Kerns, fire chief of Bowman's Addition, said Robert Russell asked volunteer firemen to burn down his barn which was located 40 or 50 feet from the Russell home and about a similar distance from a transformer pole with a light and located near a wooded area.

The firemen were on hand to see that the fire did not spread in either direction and at the same time gained fire-fighting experience.

The drill was scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m., according to the chief, who said the volunteers welcome requests from residents who would like an old building destroyed by fire under the direction of the firefighters.

Bagworms, Spider Mites Prevalent

Joseph M. Steger, Allegany County farm agent, reports that bagworms and spider mites are prevalent in the district.

Heavy outbreaks of bagworms on arborvitae, juniper and deciduous plants, particularly maple, are occurring at several localities in Maryland.

Mr. Steger says to use Sevin or malathion. Spider mites are troubling plants including rose, boxwood, spruce and hemlock. A miticide is needed, according to Mr. Steger, who recommends Kelthane or ovex.

They are troublesome during dry weather. Many generations are produced in a season, he said.

CURA Officers Are Renamed

All officers of the Board of Directors of the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency were re-elected at the annual board meeting yesterday.

Marion T. Powers was elected chairman; Karl W. Bachman, vice chairman, and Denton A. Fuller, secretary-treasurer.

Members are Harry A. Smith, Edward L. Ewald and Mayor Earl D. Chaney.

During the meeting, the board reviewed applications the agency has submitted for the long-range Center City Urban Renewal program and the George Street Urban Renewal project.

A number of questions involving the proposals were discussed, along with procedure the board will use when the expected federal approval is granted.

Magistrate Harold E. Naughton gave Wiley 10 days in the County Jail on each of the two charges, but suspended the sentence on condition he return to Perry Point Veterans Hospital for treatment.

Wiley was arrested Wednesday by City Police on three warrants issued June 14. He was charged with stealing 100 pounds of wire from the Potomac Edison Company, but Magistrate Naughton dismissed the charge at the hearing held in Trial Magistrate Court.

Campers Will Appear Today On Radio Show

The Cumberland Campers, a group of 24 area youngsters and supervisors who are wending their way homeward on the last leg of an 8,000 mile trip to the west coast and back, will appear on the radio show, "Don McNeil's Breakfast Club" in Chicago this morning.

Although the show is not broadcast locally, WCUM has arranged to tape the show and play it back at 7:10 p.m. today, enabling area residents to hear the campers.

Victor McKay, tour director, has reported that the group of 24 travelers will appear personally on the program. The group is scheduled to arrive home Saturday at the close of the trip which started at the Court House June 25.

Farm Booklet Is Available

A new publication "Rural Recreation — New Opportunities on Private Land," has been made available by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The booklet lists forms of recreation which can be developed on private farm lands which would enable farmers, especially those of low income group, to supplement their income by providing recreation areas on their land. At the same time this would alleviate pressures on public facilities which can no longer accommodate all those who want to camp, picnic, swim, and the like.

A study by the USDA of outdoor recreation facilities on farms and ranches shows that the greatest potential for meeting future recreational needs is on the Nation's private rural land.

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist for Allegany County Soil Conservation Service, said persons interested in obtaining a copy of the publication may contact his office in the Post Office Building or call PA 4-4636.

Miss Cumberland Loses But Wins New Friends

Although Miss Carolyn Rae Zucker, Miss Cumberland, failed in her bid to become Miss Maryland of 1963, she apparently won herself a number of new friends and supporters at the state finals in Catonsville last weekend.

Miss Zucker was one of the 10 finalists but was not a prize winner. She was rated as one of the three most talented on her rendition of "Bill Bailey Won't You Please Come Home."

W. Edward Eichner, Miss Zucker's chief backer in Cumberland, received a letter this week from a Baltimore friend, William Shoemaker, who witnessed the state finals. Mr. Shoemaker is in charge of the map department for the State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

His communication was in the form of a poem, entitled "My Opinion," in which he stresses his support of the Cumberland girl.

His poem read, in part as follows:

Zuky was elegant; that we're all sure;
And Bill Bailey sounded like never before.
If I had been picking the queen on that night,
Carolyn Rae Zucker would have reigned all right.
But if I hadn't seen all the contest so thrilling,
She'd still get my vote; you can bet your last shilling.

Thruway Project Progresses

This picture, taken at the intersection of Oldtown Road and Virginia Avenue shows some of the progress being made on a contract for a stretch of the South Approach of the Cumberland Thruway. The start of the present and new Cresap Street is seen extending to the left. The barricades were placed at the intersection to allow the Cumberland Contracting Company, which is doing the work for the State Roads Commission, to make the fill needed for the new Cresap Street, which will serve as a feeder to the Thruway segment. Fort Cumberland Homes, the city's third low-rent public housing project, is seen on the left of Oldtown Road. The $448,488 contract calls for grading, draining and surfacing the Thruway approach from Third Street to Thomas and Wineow streets, relocating Cresap Street and the extension of West First Street.

Orndorff To Be Installed As Postmaster August 3

William B. Orndorff, 106 Humbird Street, who has been named acting postmaster for Cumberland, will be installed at ceremonies in the Allegany County Court House at 11 a.m. on August 3.

The Post Office Department has named a committee headed by William L. Wilson Jr. to arrange for the ceremony and to issue invitations. The committee includes Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, James S. Stafford, Assistant Postmaster Thomas B. Cumiskey and Mrs. Virginia Feaga, secretary to the present postmaster, Thomas F. Conlon, who will retire July 31.

The ceremony will be held in the court room and a representative of the Post Office Department will be here to issue the oath of office, Mr. Wilson said. Other officials and friends of Mr. Orndorff are to be invited, Mr. Wilson stated, and persons interested in witnessing the affair will be welcome.

Two Children, Man Are Killed

Three Found Dead Near Home Along Old Baltimore Pike

Two teenage children and their 47-year-old stepfather were found dead last night in a hollow about 200 yards from their home along old Baltimore Pike in what State Police believe to have been a double murder and suicide.

Dead are Guy Propst, 47; Bonnie Harrison, 17, and Rickie Harrison, 15.

Authorities were still piecing together details about the shooting late last night.

Propst, who was a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employe, ordinarily picked up his wife when she got off from work at 6 p.m. each day at a local bakery. He did not show up when she finished work yesterday.

When she eventually reached home there was no one in the house and two guns, a rifle and a shotgun, were missing from the house.

The Propst home is located along the southerly side of old U.S. Route 40 just east of Miller's Garage. It is about six-and-one-half miles east of the city limits.

State Police were notified about 8:30 p.m. and immediately hurried to the scene to investigate. Also joining in the investigation were County Investigator William F. Baker and the county's deputy medical examiner, Dr. Benedict Skitarelic.

Mrs. Henrietta Propst, mother of the two children, notified State Police when she was unable to find her children or husband.

Trooper P. J. Fiorita was the first to be called to the Baltimore Pike residence, about 8:30 p.m. It was reported that a neighbor discovered the bodies about 9 p.m. to end the search.

Mrs. Propst had been married to Mr. Propst about five or six years.

Other State Police participating in the investigation are Tfc. B. J. Chabot, criminal investigator, and Tfc. J. V. Stakem. They were joined by Deputy Sheriff George Staub.

Death Scene Looked Like Battlefield

Police Give Impressions

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

"It looks like a battlefield."

This was the reaction of one of the police officers as state and county investigators arrived at the scene of a triple tragedy late last night, just off Baltimore Pike, about a quarter mile east of Rocky Gap Road, east of Cumberland.

The victims of a triple shooting were identified as Guy Propst, 47, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant worker and two of his stepchildren, Richard Lee Harrison, 15, and Bonita Louise Harrison, 17, both students at Fort Hill High School.

Sprawled In Glen

In a little wooded glen, about 150 yards beyond the Propst residence, the three bodies were sprawled, all victims of rifle bullet wounds.

The first body, that of young Harrison, known as Ricky, was lying on its side, part way up a silght hill, as if he had been running toward the other two. He had been shot, investigators said, at least once and perhaps twice with a heavy calibre rifle.

About 20 feet farther on, just in front of a small barn or large shed type building, Mr. Propst's body was lying face down. Under him was a 30-30 calibre rifle. He had been shot upward through the neck, the bullet going through the top of his head, and blowing his cap about 20 feet off to the left. The barrel of the weapon was protruding through his head from his throat just under the chin, out the top of his head. Police investigators and the medical examiner said he fell on the barrel after the shot was fired.

Around Corner

Slightly around the corner of the small barn, about 20 feet farther on, was the body of Miss Harrison. She had been wounded several times, police said maybe four or five. There were other marks and abrasions on her face and neck, which were unaccounted for in the preliminary examination.

Bonnie, as she was popularly known was wearing a white blouse, black jamaicas and tennis shoes.

She wore a wrist watch which was still running on her left wrist and an Allegany High School ring.

Ricky Harrison was wearing a pair of khaki slacks and a khaki undershirt and loafers. Their stepfather was dressed in gray work clothes, a short and slacks and work shoes.

Discovers Bodies

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Loring Helmick, a neighbor just about dark. Mrs. Helmick, known as Viola Helmick is a good friend and neighbor of Mrs. Propst.

According to Mrs. Helmick, she had been called by Mrs. Propst shortly after Mrs. Propst came home from work at the Community Bakery. Mrs. Propst said she could not find anyone at home and feared something was wrong. She told Mrs. Helmick that she had called police, an officer had stopped by in answer to her call, but they could find nothing.

A .22 calibre rifle with a freshly broken stock in the kitchen disturbed Mrs. Propst, but the police believed the gun had not been fired.

Went To Check

After the officer left, Mrs. Propst called Mrs. Helmick and Mrs. Helmick went to check. She said she had heard nothing from the family all day, but decided to look up the lane. She walked up the road toward the little barn, first saw Rickey's body and just beyond another body which she presumed was Mr. Propst. She said she did not see Bonnie, but screamed and ran back down the

Foreign Students Get Pleasant Treatment Here

Mrs. Walter E. Dyck, who was in charge of arrangements for the recent visit to Cumberland by 67 foreign students, yesterday expressed her thanks on behalf of the Cumberland Chapter of the American Field Service to all those persons and groups in the community who helped make the project a success.

Mrs. Dyck said many persons had a hand in the project to make it a successful one, especially those families who were hosts or housed one or more of the students for the weekend.

She also added that the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce helped finance the trip so the foreign students could stop in Cumberland before returning to their homes in the various foreign countries.

Two bus loads of the students arrived here July 13 and spent the weekend before moving on to Virginia. The students were on their way home after spending a year in this country and attending high school.

One of the students who became ill while here and underwent surgery, was released from Memorial Hospital Wednesday and is now on her way home.

Miss Mandana Afra, of Iran, left here Wednesday by Montgomery Air Service for Pittsburgh, where she boarded another plane for New York City. From there she will fly home to Iran.

Youths Receive Stiff Sentences In Dynamiting

Court Orders Exam For Two Inmates

Stiff sentences were imposed yesterday afternoon on five Lonaconing area youths who were tried earlier this month in Allegany County Circuit Court on charges resulting from the theft of dynamite and the dynamiting of a pumping station at Dan's Mountain State Park near Lonaconing.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey, who studied pre-sentencing investigations by James F. Lewis, state parole officer for Western Maryland, sentenced John L. Beeman, 18, and Harry William Lease, 17, each to five years in the Maryland House of Correction on charges of malicious destruction of property by use of dynamite.

He also sentenced Roy Spiker, 18, and Kenneth G. Matthews, 17, Moscow, to three years in the institution on the same charges.

John David Lease, 16, who was charged with three counts of breaking and entering at Turnbull's Mine, Callmine's Shoe and Gardner's Mine, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Institution for Males.

Judge Cobey also passed a court order directing that John David Lease and John L. Beeman be given a psychiatric examination at Patuxent Institution to determine if they are possible defective delinquents. The State's Attorney's office requested that the two youths be given the examination.

The judge pointed out yesterday that cases such as these are due to a complete lack of parental control and supervision and that the community including church groups should come to the aid of youths placed on probation.

He noted that at least two of the youths sentenced yesterday were under the supervision of the Welfare Department.

It is impossible to expect the Juvenile Court to rehabilitate youths placed on probation and the residents and groups in the community in which they live should come to their assistance and try to build them up.

In presenting the case earlier this month State's Attorney James S. Getty pointed out the seriousness of the dynamiting charges and noted that residents of the George's Creek area were "so terrorized they were afraid to leave their homes."

The state's attorney noted: "Although the dollar and cents value involved in these cases is minor, the chances for the possible loss of life were extremely great. In the cases of the dynamiting the youths would set the blasts and then leave the scene. Anyone could have entered the area and have been blown to bits."

Attorney Paul W. Barnett court-appointed counsel for the youths, gave a brief review of each defendant's educational background, noting that only one has more than a ninth grade education.

SRC To Finish First Phase Of Traffic Study

Internal Survey Is Slated Soon

State Roads Commission crews next Tuesday will complete the external station phase of a traffic survey of the City of Cumberland.

Crews will be stationed today on Route 40 east, about a fourth of a mile east of the city limits.

Monday, crews will check traffic on the Industrial Boulevard section of the Cumberland Thruway, just east of the city line, and on Tuesday will complete the last of the external point studies as they question drivers leaving Maryland by Route 28 at the Blue Bridge.

Studies were made this week on the other points of the external traffic study.

The internal survey, at 12 points within the city limits, is scheduled in the near future.

The study at the some 22 check points will duplicate and update the 1949-1950 traffic study.

Data secured by the study will be of vital interest to the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency, which is planning as its first major project the rehabilitation of the city's central area.

The SRC traffic survey party will move next Wednesday to Hancock, where they will check US 522 traffic near the West Virginia line. Thursday they will be at Williamsport and Friday at Sharpsburg.

The party is in charge of Henry F. Sacker, a member of the staff of the SRC's Traffic Bureau.

The 30-member crew stops each vehicle at the check points, asking chiefly where the driver is going, where he came from and the type of trip he is making—that is business, pleasure or work.

The points are manned for 15 hours by two shifts and estimates are made for the remaining hours.

Although Miss Carolyn Rae Zucker, Miss Cumberland, failed in her bid to become Miss Maryland of 1963, she apparently won herself a number of new friends and supporters at the state finals in Catonsville last weekend.

Miss Zucker was one of the 10 finalists but was not a prize winner. She was rated as one of the three most talented on her rendition of "Bill Bailey Won't You Please Come Home."

W. Edward Eichner, Miss Zucker's chief backer in Cumberland, received a letter this week from a Baltimore friend, William Shoemaker, who witnessed the state finals. Mr. Shoemaker is in charge of the map department for the State Department of Assessments and Taxation.

His communication was in the form of a poem, entitled "My Opinion," in which he stresses his support of the Cumberland girl.

His poem read, in part as follows:

Zuky was elegant; that we're all sure;
And Bill Bailey sounded like never before.
If I had been picking the queen on that night,
Carolyn Rae Zucker would have reigned all right.
But if I hadn't seen all the contest so thrilling,
She'd still get my vote; you can bet your last shilling.
